

FORMER COUNTY COMMISSIONER HURT BY TRUCK

Reuben Schwartz, 79, Gettysburg R. 1, retired farmer and former Adams county commissioner, is in a critical condition today at his home a mile and a half south of here along the Littlestown road as the result of injuries received when struck by a truck Friday morning about 10 o'clock at a stone quarry near his home.

Mr. Schwartz suffered fractures of two ribs on the right side, cerebral concussion, contusions of the body and severe shock.

The accident occurred at a quarry operated by John S. Teeter and sons Inc., a few hundred yards southwest of the Schwartz home. A Teeter truck was being backed from platform scales at the quarry when some part of the rear of the vehicle struck Mr. Schwartz and knocked him to the ground. The truck did not run over him. The operator was Erman Chipley, 25, Barlow. The truck was loaded.

Mr. Schwartz was removed to his home nearby where his condition remained serious throughout the day and Friday night. Today no improvement was seen in his condition.

The former county official has been in ill health for several years following a serious illness. He has been forced to walk with the use of a cane for some time. His precarious state of health and advanced age have added to the seriousness of his injuries.

JAPS ADVANCE 18 MILES IN DRIVE NEAR SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Nov. 6 (AP).—China's main defenses west of Shanghai were put in serious jeopardy, foreign military experts declared today, by the landing of a formidable Japanese force on the north shore of Hangchow bay.

Japanese said large army units, aimed at encircling Shanghai and its environs, came ashore from the bay, the largest on the Chinese coast and about 30 miles south of Shanghai at its nearest point.

A Japanese army spokesman declared that the new unit, "fighting every inch of the way" for about 18 miles, tonight had reached the south bank of the Whangpoo river about 25 hours after coming ashore.

He did not disclose its exact location.

Chinese sources acknowledged that 3,000 Japanese had landed in the Hangchow bay area and had met stiff Chinese resistance at Sung-yin within about five miles of Sungkiang, an important point in the Chinese defense, about 20 miles southeast of Shanghai.

"Many more transports" had arrived in the bay, the Chinese declared.

With the departure of Southern Methodist missionaries after Japanese air bombers had destroyed half of Sungkiang, heavily damaging mission properties, no foreigners were known to remain in the city.

The Japanese reports of a swift drive north were believed to indicate a possibly decisive battle was impending in the vicinity of Shanghai.

The Japanese veiled the size of their force and its specific objectives in utmost secrecy.

Improperly Loaded Truck Caused Crash

A charge of failing to load a truck properly so as to prevent the cargo from dropping to the highway was filed Friday evening before Justice of the Peace John W. Dubs, Penn township, York county, by Officer J. P. Monaghan, of the local motor police substation, as a result of an unusual accident south of Hanover Monday evening. The charge is against Melvin E. Wentz, Hanover R. 2.

Reports on the accident indicated that an insecurely fastened end-gate in the Wentz truck opened and allowed cordwood to drop to the highway in front of a following truck. The second vehicle was badly damaged and another car, parked along the highway, also was damaged.

PRESBYTERIAN PROGRAM
The Parade of the Holidays will be presented by pupils of the Junior-Intermediate department of the Presbyterian Sunday school next Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the social rooms of the church. Mrs. Donald Scott is department superintendent and is directing the program.

Sausage 30c at Mart Today; Chrysanthemums Reach $5 A Dozen; 30 Stalls Occupied

Pork was the only offering that sold quickly at a sluggish session in the Farmers' market house this morning. Hucksters offering pork and its products sold out quickly, while staple fruits and vegetables moved slowly.

Sausage brought 30 cents a pound at most stalls and scrapie was priced at 12 and 15 cents, pudding, 20 and 25 cents; backbone and ribs, 20 cents; pork chops, 30 cents; sliced ham, 30 cents; and lard, 14 and 15 cents a pound.

Chrysanthemums were almost the only flowers offered and the large varieties ranged in price from 50 cents to $5 a dozen. Smaller sized blooms were sold by the bunch and were priced at 25 cents and up. Bittersweet brought 10 cents a bunch.

Apples were plentiful and prices were slightly stronger than in the last few weeks. Top quality Stark Delicious and Stayman sold for $1.25 and Grimes and Banana brought $1 a bushel at most stalls. "Seconds" could be had in most varieties for 50 and 75 cents a bushel. The price on cider continued at 20 and 25 cents a gallon and apple butter was on sale many places at 25 cents a quart.

Celery was more plentiful and brought five to 10 cents a bunch; Chinese cabbage, eight to 15 cents a head; pumpkins, five to 20 cents each; turnips, 10 cents a quarter peck and 20 cents a half; Kieffer pears, 10 cents a quart box; endive, five and eight cents a stalk; dried apples, two quart boxes for 25 cents; cabbage, five to 15 cents a head; peppers, one cent each and 10 cents a dozen, while broccoli, probably the last of the season, sold for 10 cents a bunch.

Butter brought 37 and 40 cents a pound. Cheese was five cents a package and buttermilk was offered at 10 cents a quart.

Potatoes were 50 cents a bushel and in smaller quantities were priced at 10 cents a quarter peck and 15 cents a half peck.

Pullet eggs brought 30 to 35 cents a dozen, with 40 cents as the top price for large whites. Dressed young chickens and fryers were 40 cents a pound. Old fowl and ducks, dressed, were 35 cents a pound. Squabs were 15 and 20 cents each, dressed.

Mush sold for 20 cents a pan. Sauer kraut was offered at 15 cents a quart.

Home-baked bread could be had at 15 cents a loaf. Pumpkin, fruit and custard pies ranged in price from 10 to 25 cents. Sugar cookies brought 15 cents a dozen.

Fewer than 30 stalls were occupied this morning as the number of hucksters continued to dwindle from the summer peak.

BIGLER PARENTS ELECT KANAGY

J. F. Kanagy was elected president of the Biglerville Parent-Teachers' association at the opening fall meeting of the association Friday evening in the school auditorium. He succeeds Paul F. Osborn.

Other officers elected were: Vice President, Mrs. E. A. Meyer; secretary, Miss Blanche Deardorff; and treasurer, Bruce B. Taylor.

Members of the nominating committee were C. D. Augsburger, Mrs. Allan B. Coddington and J. D. Miller.

Miss June Bigham's room won the prize for having the highest percentage of parents in attendance.

The program for the evening consisted of music by the second grade pupils; a sketch of the life of James Whitcomb Riley by Joanna Meyer followed by two of his poems by other members of the sixth grade. "When the Frost Is on the Pumpkin," Tom Yost, and "The Ole Swimming Hole," Leo Kleinfelter. Barbara Kleinfelter and Gerald Heller sang a duet entitled "Sunbonnet Sally and O'Jim." Creative music by the rhythm band of the first grade also was included on the program.

A skit from the play "Come Out of the Kitchen," which the Peter Pan Players Dramatic club will present, November 18 and 19, under the direction of Miss H. Louise Creager, was presented as part of the program.

The meeting closed with the showing of several reels of a silent motion picture.

Renews Bail for Court On Corn Stealing Charge

Edward Wagoner, near Two Taverns, arrested last Saturday evening by Chief of Police Lloyd E. Wisler on a charge of stealing corn from the field of Russell Deaner, Gettysburg R. 5, on the preceding night, signed a plea of guilty before Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore Friday evening when he appeared there for a hearing.

The prosecutor was Officer Leon R. Geiger of the state motor police. Wagoner renewed bail in the amount of $300 for court.

HOSPITAL REPORT
Mrs. Edward Null, Silver Run, Maryland, was admitted to the Annie M. Warner hospital Friday evening, where she submitted to an operation for acute appendicitis. Her condition today was reported to be good. Alice Elker, Orrtanna, also was admitted Friday.

Discharged today included Roy Mickle, Orrtanna R. D., and Irene Miller, Bendersville.

To Face Court for Assault by Auto

Donald O. Swope, Gettysburg R. 5, was arrested Friday evening on a charge of aggravated assault and battery by automobile which had been filed before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer by Milton L. Sachs, Gettysburg R. 1, as the result of a head-on collision of two automobiles on Wainwright avenue, near the Gettysburg high school building, early Monday afternoon.

At a hearing this morning at 11 o'clock before Justice Shealer Swope was held under $300 bail for court. Miss Louise Sachs, driver of one of the machines, said that she has been under a doctor's care since the crash and that her hearing was affected by a head injury she received when the cars crashed. Six girls, occupants of the Sachs car, were called as witnesses this morning.

UNVEIL MARKER FOR ORGANIZING REGENT OF D. A. R.

An outstanding feature of the November meeting of the Gettysburg chapter of the D. A. R. was the unveiling of a marker on the headstone of the grave of Miss Virginia Helen McCurdy in the Evergreen cemetery Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Miss McCurdy was the organizing regent of the local chapter.

The exercises were led by the chaplain, Mrs. H. D. Hoover, and the acting regent, Mrs. C. E. Bilheimer. Twenty members took part, including two charter members, Mrs. J. Kerr Scott and Mrs. S. S. Neely.

Following the exercises the members held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Miss Alice Black, Flora Dale. During the business meeting requests were presented from Cressmore school and Kenmore and payment of $5 to each was ordered. The resignation of Miss Virginia Partner as senior president of the C. A. R. was accepted with regret.

Included on the program were reports of delegates and alternates to the state conference held in Harrisburg, October 19-22. Reports were given by Mrs. M. K. Eckert, Mrs. C. N. Gilt, Mrs. John Mumper, Miss Elizabeth Woods, Mrs. W. H. Danforth, Mrs. Anna C. Plank, Miss Black and Mrs. Bilheimer.

The meeting closed with a social hour during which refreshments were served by Miss Black and her committee, Mrs. Victor Dutera, Mrs. Guile Lefever and Mrs. Hillary Kennedy.

The next meeting will be held in the Y. W. C. A. building, center square, Friday, December 4, with the C. A. R. in charge of the program.

To Hold Inquest In Fory Fatality

Dr. Edgar A. Miller, Adams county coroner, announced today that he expects to conduct an inquest into the death of Mrs. Lucinda Fory, York, who died Friday morning in the Annie M. Warner hospital from injuries she received last Sunday evening when she was struck by an automobile at Natural Springs park on the Lincoln highway east of here. The exact time of the inquest has not been set.

Mrs. Fory's death was the third to result from automobile accidents in this section over last week-end. Two young men died as the result of a crash near Mt. Holly Springs Sunday evening.

2,000 Sign Petitions Against Doe Season

Altoona, Pa., Nov. 6 (AP).—Blair county sportsmen forwarded to the state Game commission today a protest against the antlerless deer season.

Two thousand persons, including Mayor J. Harry Moser, signed the petitions which declared the open season a "menace" to the city of Altoona.

PAST GRANTS TO MEET

The November meeting of the Past Grands' association of Adams county, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will be held Monday evening, with Sylvania lodge, No. 613, Littlestown, following the regular lodge session.

Commissioners May End Count of Ballots Today

Adams county commissioners continued their tabulation of the official count of Tuesday's election results this afternoon in the hope that their task may be completed by late afternoon and that it would not be necessary for them to return to the court house Monday morning.

The count opened at noon on Friday.

S. U. V. TO HOLD TWO SERVICES ON NOVEMBER 19

The programs for a double observance of the seventy-fourth anniversary of the dedication of the National cemetery here, the occasion on which Abraham Lincoln delivered his immortal address, were announced Friday evening at a regular meeting of the Gettysburg camp of the Sons of Union Veterans.

Brief exercises will be conducted on the anniversary date, Friday, November 19, in the National cemetery and in the evening of the same day there will be a program in the G. A. P. post room on East Middle street when an address will be delivered by the Rev. Howard S. Fox, pastor of Trinity Evangelical Reformed church.

Arrangements for the two occasions were announced by William L. Meals, Esq., chairman of the camp's special committee for the anniversary celebration.

The exercises in the cemetery will be conducted at the National monument at 3:30 o'clock when music will be provided by the Gettysburg high school band. The program will open with the singing of "America," after which prayer will be offered by the Rev. D. Perry Bucke, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church here. Lincoln's Gettysburg address will be read by the Rev. Luther B. Hafer, Taneytown, Maryland, a member of the local camp.

A floral wreath is to be placed on the grave of an unknown soldier by Major Calvin Gilbert, 98, Gettysburg's only surviving veteran of the Civil war and the oldest veteran in the county. The program will end with the benediction and singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The public has been invited to attend the services and a special invitation has been issued to persons of this community who heard Lincoln deliver his dedicatory address to be present for the exercises. Transportation will be furnished from the post room for those persons.

The evening program in the post room will begin at 7:30 o'clock with the invocation by the Rev. Mr. Hafer. Following the pledge of allegiance, a Gettysburg high school student will recite Lincoln's address. The principal address will be delivered by the Rev. Mr. Fox and the Rev. Mr. Hafer will pronounce the benediction. Refreshments are to be served after the meeting which will replace the regular camp meeting scheduled for that evening.

The exercises at the post room will be attended by members of the Sons of Veterans post, affiliated organizations and their families.

The Sons of Veterans meeting Friday evening was adjourned to reconvene at the call of Commander George P. Black who presided over the session. The next regular meeting of the camp will be held Friday evening, December 3.

Windsor Cancels U. S. Tour; Labor Criticism Blamed

DUKE AND DUCHESS OF WINDSOR

Paris, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor is considering a journey to Soviet Russia to balance his recent tour of Nazi Germany, a person close to the royal party said tonight. The purpose of such a journey, it was said, would be to show the world that the former King of England plays no politics. It would be an extension of his European labor survey and might also include Scandinavia, Europe's neutral zone.

Paris, Nov. 6 (AP).—A member of the Duke of Windsor's suite said today that the feeling within the Duke's entourage that United States officials took a "lukewarm attitude" toward his proposed American tour was one of the reasons for the decision to "postpone" it.

Close advisers of the former King of England were said to have felt that there was a "lack of enthusiasm" on the part of Washington officials. This, coupled with American labor leaders' criticism, was considered to make it advisable to call off the journey.

A spokesman for the American embassy said that Ambassador William C. Bullitt already had called on the Duke and Duchess to say good-bye before the postponement decision was made known.

COUNTY CLERK TO WED TODAY

This afternoon at 4 o'clock Harvey Junior Weikert, son of Mrs. Harvey W. Weikert, Littlestown, and Miss Dolores Minerva Mummert, Hanover, daughter of Charles Mummert, York, will be united in marriage in St. Matthews' Lutheran church in Hanover by its pastor, the Rev. Dr. Harry Hursh Beldeman. The ring ceremony will be used and the couple will be unmarried.

Mr. Weikert is a clerk in the office of Register and Recorder Quintin D. Rebert at the county court house here. He is a graduate of the Littlestown high school in the class of 1929 and later graduated from Thompson's Business college at York. His bride is a graduate of Hanover high school in the class of 1933.

After a week-end wedding trip to Baltimore, the couple will reside at 166 Charles street, Littlestown, the Weikert home.

ROME JOINS JAPS AND GERMANS IN ANTI-RED ACCORD

Rome, Nov. 6 (AP).—Italy joined Japan and Germany today in an accord against Communism which their protocol declared "continues to place the civilized world in the 'constant' danger of war."

The protocol stipulated that Italy be considered an original signatory of the nearly year-old German-Japanese pact against the Communist International.

The protocol was a short document, giving in a 150-word introductory statement the three powers reasons for the agreement.

The introduction declared that only by close collaboration of all states interested in maintaining "peace" could the war danger be removed.

It paid a separate tribute to Italy which "has combated this danger with an inflexible determination and has eliminated international Communism from its territory."

Italy has decided, the introduction went on, to associate herself with Germany and Japan "who on their part are animated by the same will to defend themselves against the Communist International."

Four brief articles were appended after the introductory statement, setting forth these clauses:

1. Italy enters the anti-Comintern agreement of November 25, 1936.
2. Italy will be considered as a signatory of the original accord.
3. The protocol is made an integral part of the previous accord and its supplementary protocol.
4. The protocol is done in triplicate in Rome.

The new accord was written in Italian, German and Japanese.

To Buy Volley Ball Fixtures

The directors heard that no final report was available on the results of their decision a month ago to employ Kishbaugh and Smith, professional collectors, to gather delinquent personal taxes. Superintendent Keefe stated that a member of the concern had expressed the preliminary opinion that the matter can best be handled by the regular collector.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Steels led a brisk decline in today's brief stock market. While selling was not particularly urgent at the start, the ticker tape picked up speed in the second hour and losses of fractions to more than three points were posted for many leaders. Even the climbing gold mine stocks of last week failed to attract fresh support and the majority displayed slipping tendencies. Predictions of a further sharp drop in production next week dampened the steel group. Coppers turned lower at talk of an additional cut in the red metal price was heard.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Slaybaugh, of Fairfield, and Mrs. E. E. Slaybaugh, Mrs. C. K. Hartzell and Miss Geraldine Hartzell, of Gettysburg, spent the day in Harrisburg.

DIRECTORS SEE FILMS DESIGNED FOR SCHOOL USE

Introduction of sound motion picture equipment into the Gettysburg public schools to make available to the teachers and pupils the most modern—and claimed to be the most effective—method of instruction was taken under advisement by the Gettysburg school board at its regular November meeting Friday evening in the office of Superintendent Lloyd C. Keefe in the high school building.

Greatly impressed after seeing a 25-minute film titled, "Overcoming the Limitations to Learning," which they later termed a "revelation in modern education methods," the board members hesitated only because of financial reasons and decided to consider the matter carefully until the December session, Monday, December 6, when the annual organization of the board will be affected.

Various sound films were shown to the board members for nearly an hour by J. P. Lilley, Harrisburg, representative of the Victor Animatophone corporation. He told the school officials that such equipment has been in use for a year and more in Biglerville, New Oxford, Hanover and other nearby grade and high schools.

Would Cost $595

Board members were joined by Superintendent Keefe in their endorsement of the educational advantages offered to teachers and pupils alike by the silent and sound films that would be available constantly for classroom work and to school clubs in selected subjects.

The projector and heavy dynamic speaker with 100 feet of cable and a large 8x12 foot screen and another smaller classroom screen would cost the school district $595. Lilley stated that hundreds of films could be secured at no cost, while others would be available at low rentals. He suggested that the town schools would profit by participating in a plan by which many schools in an area establish a "picture library," each contributing one or more films and having all available for use a week at a time with no charge. The purchase price of films ranges up to $50, the board heard.

Lilley promised a two-year guarantee on the projecting and sound equipment and unlimited free service.

Accepts Driveway Project

After hearing a report from Leroy H. Winebrenner, a statement from members of the board property committee and explanations offered by E. C. Williams, local contractor who was awarded the contract for surfacing the driveway and parking area to the south of the new south wing to the high school building, the board voted to accept the work and pay Williams when he presents receipted bills for the materials used in the work. Members of the property committee and Winebrenner found fault with the manner in which the work had been done, although it was held to comply with specifications.

Payment of the bill for the work had been refused at the last board meeting. Williams appeared before the board Friday evening and stated that the proper amounts of base stone and four tons of chips above the amount specified in the contract had been applied. Smoothing of depressions in the surface is to be accomplished with the application of the "seal coat" of tar and fine chips to cost about $150.

To Buy Volley Ball Fixtures

The directors heard that no final report was available on the results of their decision a month ago to employ Kishbaugh and Smith, professional collectors, to gather delinquent personal taxes. Superintendent Keefe stated that a member of the concern had expressed the preliminary opinion that the matter can best be handled by the regular collector.

The property committee was authorized to secure fixtures needed for volley ball standards in the gymnasium at the high school. It was stated that boiler insurance had been written in accordance with board directions.

Members of the board were invited to attend the joint meeting of the Rotary and Lions clubs Monday evening at Mrs. Smith's restaurant, when Dr. Lester K. Ade, state superintendent of public instruction, will deliver an address appropriate to the observance of national Education Week.

All members of the board were in attendance, with Dr. C. G. Crist, president, presiding.

Local Man Cousin of Ida M. Tarbell, Writer

DUKE CANCELS U. S. TOUR; MAY VISIT IN RUSSIA

and was met in the lobby by Lieut. Dudley Forwood, the Duke's equerry. Together they went up to the Windsor's apartments. Two and a quarter hours later the ambassador came downstairs alone and left the hotel.
May Come Here in Spring
The Duke, it was said, sent a letter to the Department of Interior at Washington asking "suggestions" for his itinerary. The reply, which mentioned several public works projects, was said to have been considered by the Duke's advisers as "perfunctory."
Some members of the Duke's suite were represented as having felt that the couple should have been offered a state dinner at the White House instead of the planned luncheon from which Mrs. Roosevelt was to have been absent.
These advisers were said to feel that "a better atmosphere" could be created from an American journey, possibly next spring. It was disclosed that the possibility of making the tour at that time was being studied.

Party in Seculism
Persons close to the Windsors described the former British monarch as hopeful that public opinion in America would "change" within a few months, opening the way for the trip which was to have started today but was postponed by Windsor because of "grave misconceptions" of his motives.

Nearly 70 trunks, it was learned, sent to Cherbourg for the voyage were reloaded today and shipped back to Paris.
The itinerant Duke and Duchess were busily engaged, an associate said, in discussing what next to do, where next to go—now that their American tour had been delayed.

They and their party remained in the seclusion of the Royal suite all morning. Even David Storer, the Duke's bodyguard, who usually strolls through the hotel lobby, was not seen.

Crowds of curious gathered at both entrances of their hotel.
Their plans for the immediate future—to fill the gap caused by cancellation of their plans to sail for New York today—might be the subject of a press conference scheduled for this afternoon.

Windsor's representative said it was improbable the one-time "good will salesman" himself would announce the revised plans—if any new statement were made—but preferably would delegate that duty to one of his associates.

Says Purpose Misunderstood
The press conference in the Windsor's apartment first was set for noon but later delayed for two hours after Edward's equerry, Lieut. Dudley Forwood, returned from a visit to the British embassy.

Hotel attendants reported "not the slightest" signs of an imminent departure since the Duke's postponement statement was distributed Friday night, less than 15 hours before Edward and his American-born Duchess planned to start for America.

The statement said the Duke made the postponement with "great reluctance" and was motivated by "grave misconceptions which have arisen and misstatements which have appeared" about the motives and purpose of the tour.

British sources said the decision probably was based on two factors:
1. The Duke desired not to create any possible strain on British-American relations and felt that any trouble over his visit would offend Britain generally.

2. The Duke considered that in view of a critical resolution by the Federation of Labor in Baltimore—the Duchess home town—that the time was not ripe for a visit.

The statement added that "the Duke emphatically repeats that there is no shadow of justification for any suggestion he is allied with any industrial system or that he is for or against any particular political or racial doctrine."

"The Baltimore labor organization of Wednesday adopted a resolution 'warning' organized labor not to be taken in by 'any' parties professing to help and study labor." It ended with the Windsor's recent visit to Germany.

(The Baltimore labor organization, Charles E. D. ... engineer and ... who was to have been ... conditions ... The Federation of Labor ... of labor ... work ... labor as the "strike")

Railroads Ask I. C. C. For Rate Increases

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP).—Executive of the nation's class one railroads told the Interstate Commerce commission today their lines need $508,000,000 more income to meet increases in payroll, taxes and supplies.

The margin between income and operating expenses has been squeezed so thin, they said in a petition to boost freight rates and passenger fares, that rail systems face a crisis.

They asked for a flat increase of 15 per cent on freight rates and an increase in passenger fares in eastern territory from 2 to 2½ cents a mile.

MRS. HAHN GETS DEATH PENALTY IN POISON CASE

Cincinnati, Nov. 6 (AP).—Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn, 31-year-old blonde mother, was convicted of first degree murder today in the poison death of Jacob Wagner, 78-year-old retired gardener. The jury did not recommend mercy, making the death penalty mandatory.

The jurors spent about two and one half hours in actual deliberation, since receiving the case Friday night.

Mrs. Hahn would be the first woman ever executed in Ohio.

She appeared in the courtroom nervous and distraught, her blonde hair disheveled and twisted a handkerchief between her fingers.

John Granda, lone male member of the jury, read the verdict. As Mrs. Hahn heard the death decree, she made no move, except to lower her head slightly, and pursed her lips.

Judge Charles S. Bell had previously warned the spectators against making any demonstration. Dozens of uniformed special guards were stationed about the courtroom to enforce his order.

As Judge Bell thanked the jurors and went through the usual routine for adjournment, Mrs. Hahn looked up and stared fixedly at the jurist.

Parents and Child, Aged 2, Killed in Georgia Train Wreck

Lovejoy, Ga., Nov. 6 (AP).—Three persons were killed and the engineer and fireman pinned under the wreckage in a derailment of the Central of Georgia limited passenger train, the Southland, after it struck a truck at a crossing today.

Pullman Conductor William A. Rankin said none of the twenty-seven passengers on the four Pullman cars was hurt.

Trainmen said the dead were occupants of the truck—a man, a woman and a small child.

James Brown, farmer of the Rex, Georgia, district, said the dead were James Allen, 29; Mrs. James A. Allen, 18, and their two-year-old son, James Allen, Jr.

The fireman, Jim Henry, of Macon, who was trapped in the wreckage along with Engineer D. C. Wall, of Atlanta, was removed still conscious nearly three hours after the wreck.

Rescuers said they saw no trace of the engineer and feared him dead.

Two Cars Damaged at York Railroad Crossing

An unusual accident at the West Market street, York, crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad at 10:30 o'clock Friday evening involved two automobiles and a railroad engine. The automobiles were damaged.

In an investigation Deputy Sheriff John Dodson, West York borough officer, learned Eugene Sutton, Freeland, Maryland, had stopped his car at the crossing to await passage of a train. J. B. Zimmerman, Gettysburg, drove alongside of Sutton's car, failed to see the engine, and collided with it.

The Zimmerman car bounced back into Sutton's car and damaged its right fender and door. The Zimmerman machine was damaged about the fenders and one headlight. The two drivers agreed on a damage settlement.

About 35,000,000 trees were distributed through the federal and state cooperation to farmers in the last year for planting farm forests, windbreaks and shelterbelts.

Fence "Stumps" Stampeding Steers
This old stump fence seen along route 322 near Clearfield, Clearfield county, still serves its purpose of corralling cattle after more than 50 years. Built of pine stumps uprooted and turned on their sides, the fence was probably built soon after the original timber was removed from the section, perhaps 70 years ago. Two living pines, stunted descendants of the giants which once covered the section, are at the right of the picture.

DUKE CANCELS U. S. TOUR; MAY VISIT IN RUSSIA

May Come Here in Spring

The Duke, it was said, sent a letter to the Department of Interior at Washington asking "suggestions" for his itinerary. The reply, which mentioned several public works projects, was said to have been considered by the Duke's advisers as "perfunctory."

Some members of the Duke's suite were represented as having felt that the couple should have been offered a state dinner at the White House instead of the planned luncheon from which Mrs. Roosevelt was to have been absent.

These advisers were said to feel that "a better atmosphere" could be created from an American journey, possibly next spring. It was disclosed that the possibility of making the tour at that time was being studied.

Party in Secusion

Persons close to the Windsor described the former British monarch as hopeful that public opinion in America would "change" within a few months, opening the way for the trip which was to have started today but was postponed by Windsor because of "grave misconceptions" of his motives.

Nearly 70 trunks, it was learned, sent to Cherbourg for the voyage were reloaded today and shipped back to Paris.

The itinerant Duke and Duchess were busily engaged, an associate said, in discussing what next to do, where next to go—now that their American tour had been delayed.

They and their party remained in the seclusion of the Royal suite all morning. Even David Storer, the Duke's bodyguard, who usually strolls through the hotel lobby, was not seen.

Crowds of curious gathered at both entrances of their hotel.

Their plans for the immediate future—to fill the gap caused by cancellation of their plans to sail for New York today—might be the subject of a press conference scheduled for this afternoon.

Windsor's representative said it was improbable the one-time "good will salesman" himself would announce the revised plans—if any new statement were made—but preferably would delegate that duty to one of his associates.

Says Purpose Misunderstood

The press conference in the Windsor's apartment first was set for noon but later delayed for two hours after Edward's equerry, Lieut. Dudley Forwood, returned from a visit to the British embassy.

Hotel attendants reported "not the slightest" signs of an imminent departure since the Duke's postponement statement was distributed Friday night, less than 15 hours before Edward and his American-born Duchess planned to start for America.

The statement said the Duke made the postponement with "great reluctance" and was motivated by "grave misconceptions which have arisen and misstatements which have appeared" about the motives and purpose of the tour.

British sources said the decision probably was based on two factors:

1. The Duke desired not to create any possible strain on British-American relations and felt that any trouble over his visit would offend Britain generally.
2. The Duke considered that in view of a critical resolution by the federation of labor in Baltimore—the Duchess home town—that the time was not ripe for a visit.

The statement added that "the Duke emphatically repeats that there is no shadow of justification for any suggestion he is allied with any industrial system or that he is for or against any particular political or racial doctrine x x x."

(The Baltimore labor organization on Wednesday adopted a resolution "warning" organized labor not to be "taken in" by "slumming parties professing to help and to study labor." It criticized the Windsor's recent visit to Germany.)

(The resolution also attacked Charles E. Bedaux, an industrial engineer and friend of the Windsors, who was to have been their guide on a 37-day tour to study industrial conditions and housing. The federation called Bedaux an "arch-enemy" of labor because of his industrial work system known to labor as the "stretch-out.")

Railroads Ask I. C. C. For Rate Increases

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—Executives of the nation's class one railroads told the Interstate Commerce commission today their lines need $508,000,000 more income to meet increases in payroll, taxes and supplies.

The margin between income and operating expenses has been squeezed so thin, they said in a petition to boost freight rates and passenger fares, that rail systems face a crisis.

They asked for a flat increase of 15 per cent on freight rates and an increase in passenger fares in eastern territory from 2 to 2½ cents a mile.

40 PLANES BOMB MUNITION DEPOT

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Nov. 6 (AP)—Forty fast war planes were reported today to have struck at Zaragoza, the heart of the Insurgent offensive in Northeastern Spain.

Government reports said bombs caused terrific explosions and fires and had crashed into a large munitions depot at Zaragoza, headquarters of the Insurgent forces now strategically massed to smash into Government Spain.

In Friday's aerial combat Insurgents raided supply stations at Barbastro, a key Government defense position, east of the Insurgent headquarters, and the Catalan village of San Felix De Guixol.

Extent of the damage in Zaragoza was not made known. A Government communique said the planes bombed "military objectives" and returned safely. The Insurgent communique said the defending planes engaged the attackers over Zaragoza and downed one of them.

Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, Joachim Vin Ribbentrop, German ambassador to London, and Masaaki Hotta, Japanese ambassador to Rome, signed for their governments.

Von Ribbentrop, who had been given a special mission to Rome for this purpose, had negotiated the year-old anti-Communism pact between Germany and Japan which was enlarged by today's action to include Italy.

Parents and Child, Aged 2, Killed in Georgia Train Wreck

Lovejoy, Ga. Nov. 6 (AP)—Three persons were killed and the engineer and fireman pinned under the wreckage in a derailment of the Central of Georgia limited passenger train, the Southland, after it struck a truck at a crossing today.

Pullman Conductor William A. Rankin said none of the twenty-seven passengers on the four Pullman cars was hurt.

Trainmen said the dead were occupants of the truck—a man, a woman and a small child.

James Brown, farmer of the Rex, Georgia, district, said the dead were James Allen, 29; Mrs. James A. Allen, 18, and their two-year-old son, James Allen, Jr.

The fireman, Jim Henry, of Macon, who was trapped in the wreckage along with Engineer D. C. Wall, of Atlanta, was removed still conscious nearly three hours after the wreck.

Rescuers said they saw no trace of the engineer and feared him dead.

Two Cars Damaged at York Railroad Crossing

An unusual accident at the West Market street, York, crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad at 10:30 o'clock Friday evening involved two automobiles and a railroad engine. The automobiles were damaged.

In an investigation Deputy Sheriff John Dodson, West York borough officer, learned Eugene Sutton, Freeland, Maryland, had stopped his car at the crossing to await passage of a train. J. B. Zimmerman, Gettysburg, drove alongside of Sutton's car, failed to see the engine, and collided with it.

The Zimmerman car bounced back into Sutton's car and damaged its right fender and door. The Zimmerman machine was damaged about the fenders and one headlight. The two drivers agreed on a damage settlement.

About 35,000,000 trees were distributed through the federal and state cooperation to farmers in the last year for planting farm forests, windbreaks and shelterbelts.

Fence "Stumps" Stampeding Steers

This old stump fence seen along route 322 near Clearfield, Clearfield county, still serves its purpose of corralling cattle after more than 50 years. Built of pine stumps uprooted and turned on their sides, the fence was probably built soon after the original timber was removed from the section, perhaps 70 years ago. Two living pines, stunted descendants of the giants which once covered the section, are at the right of the picture.

HOLDING OPEN HOUSE IN MOBILE was unintentional but forceful when a twisting wind storm struck that Alabama city's waterfront, leaving several persons injured and heavy property damage in its wake. Here's one of the homes in the path of the storm, its rooms left exposed when walls were blown away. The value of vitamin A in poor light has caused it to be prescribed for automobile drivers troubled in seeing roads clearly at night. The vitamin stimulated the "rods," nerve endings of that shape in the eye, which do most of the seeing in poor light.

A different set of nerve endings, called "cones," do the seeing in bright light. The Columbia scientists proved by making experiments on a person with cirrhosis of the liver that these bright light nerves also work better with vitamin A. Where this disease existed eyesight was impaired both in bright light and in twilight.

"Huge doses" of a concentrated form of vitamin A restored the eyesight of the liver cirrhosis case to normal. In this recovery the "cones," which see the bright light, were fully as much improved as the dark-seeing "rods."

A person who keeps quiet without any clothes on needs not expect to perspire until the temperature passes 86 degrees.

This dividing line of comfort was found in experiments reported by James D. Hardy and Eugene F. DuBois, of the Russell Sage Institute of Pathology in affiliation with the New York hospital and the department of medicine, Cornell Medical college, New York.

Two healthy men stripped for several hours for cooling measurement. First they were compared with a cylinder painted black, about half man size. This comparison showed that up to 82 the humans kept cool exactly the same as the inanimate object.

Between 82 and 86 degrees the men's blood vessels dilated. At 86 this dilation started perspiration.

Hollywood—in Hollywood the traditional grain of salt won't do. You need a barrel of it.

All you have to do to join the "skeptics" club out here is ask one little question and wait for developments. The question is: "And how did you get into pictures?"

Every actor has a different answer—sometimes a true one.

Miss Mylicent Bartholomew and nephew Freddie arrived in Hollywood from England on a vacation. While here, they thought they'd see about getting Freddie the part of "David Copperfield." Wonder of wonders, they went to the studio and the producer jumped up and down and signed Freddie and he didn't go back to England at all. (The true version of Aunt Cissy's story has been aired in court.)

Wife in Disguise

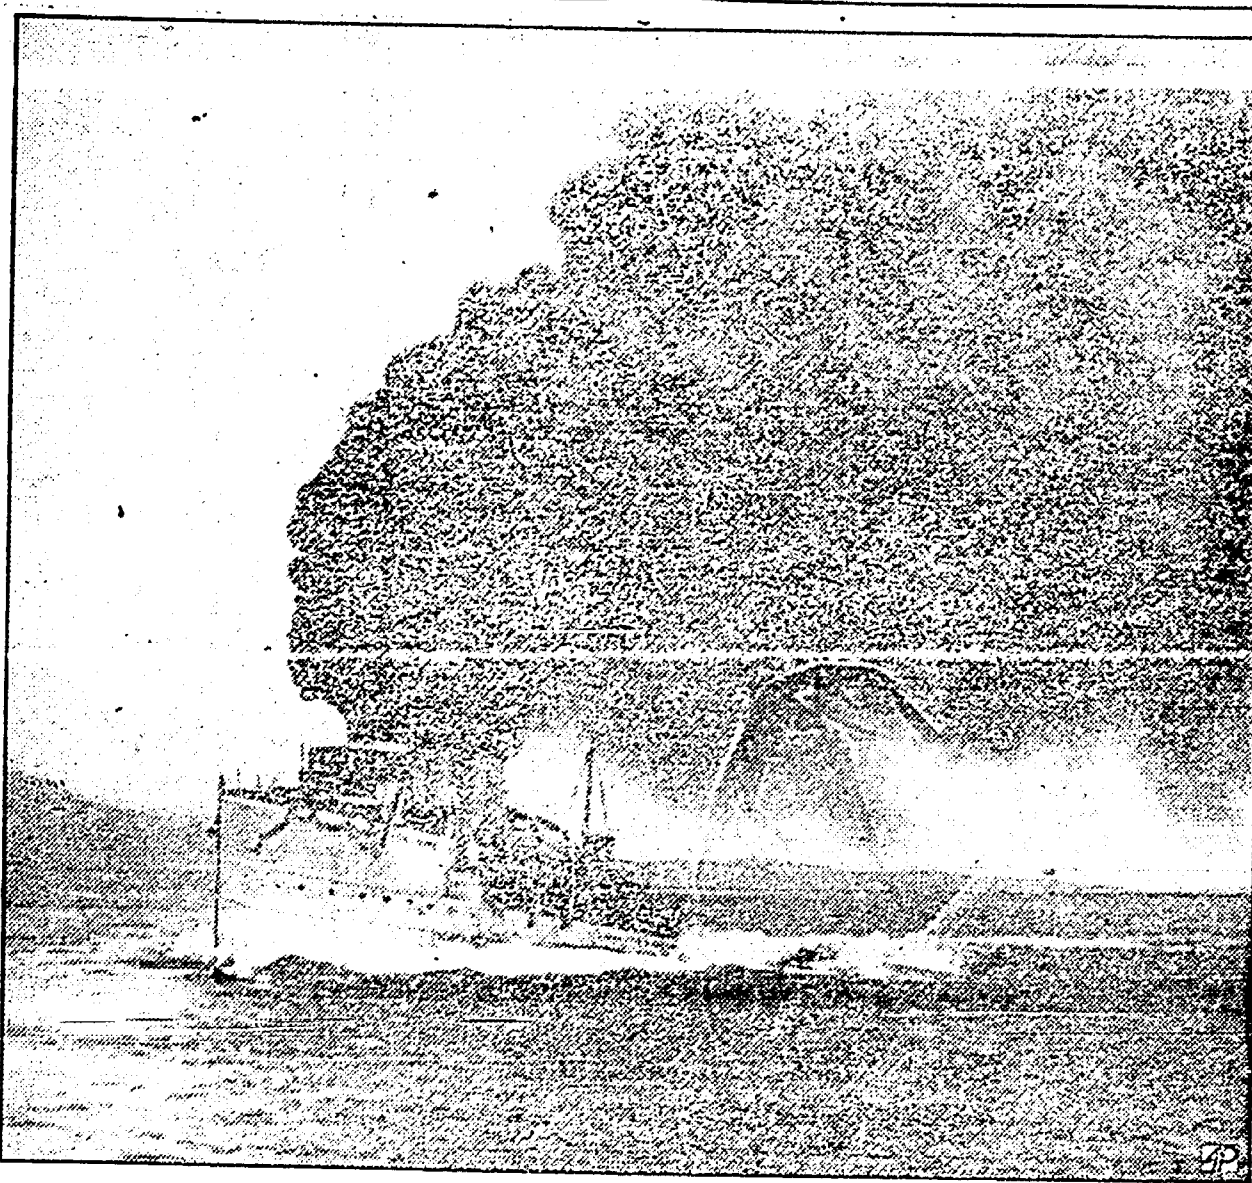

Miss Mari Colman was carving out a career on the New York stage when a Paramount scout spotted her and rushed her west. Strangely enough—because in Hollywood miracles are commonplace—Cecil B. DeMille was even then questing for a "virginal Diana" for one of his pictures. He chose Mari after testing hundreds. Mari was coy. She could not tell her real name or her real home town—because the family had objections to an acting career. She was a mystery girl—until Gus Sonnenburg got mad and spilled the beans and Mari (now called Judith Allen) owned up she was then Gus's missus.

Miss Marsha Hunt came to Hollywood on a vacation and she had no idea, no indeed, of going into pictures. Oddly, she was met at the train by a photographer and got considerable publicity on the strength of her adamant resolve to have nothing to do with pictures. So she got a contract. It was not until months later that she started telling the truth: that it was a clever plot to get in quickly and surely.

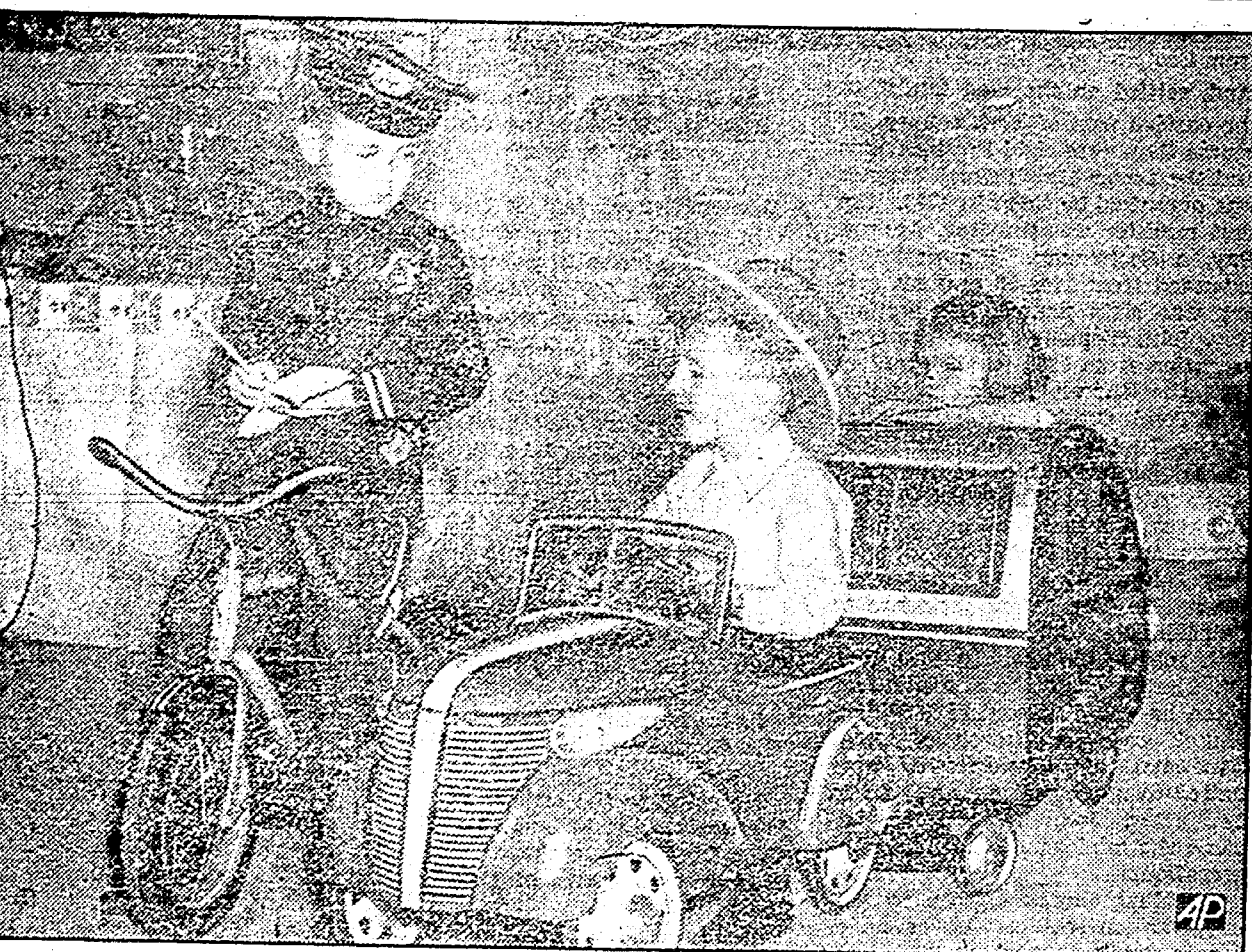

Romantic Family Man
Phil Regan, the singing cop, was one of Hollywood's most eligible bachelors. He was "rumored" attached to this newcomer and that. How much this contributed to the spread of his fame is uncertain—but the biggest "story" he ever got came with the truth. Phil was revealed as an adoring husband, and as fond father of four youngsters, all of whom stayed obligingly in the background for the old professional reasons.

It may be, considering this case, that the truth doesn't pay. Warren Hull came here and made no secret of his matrimonial status nor of the fact that he was working to buy shoes for three growing children. And what did Hull get out of it? Just an occasional mention like this one.

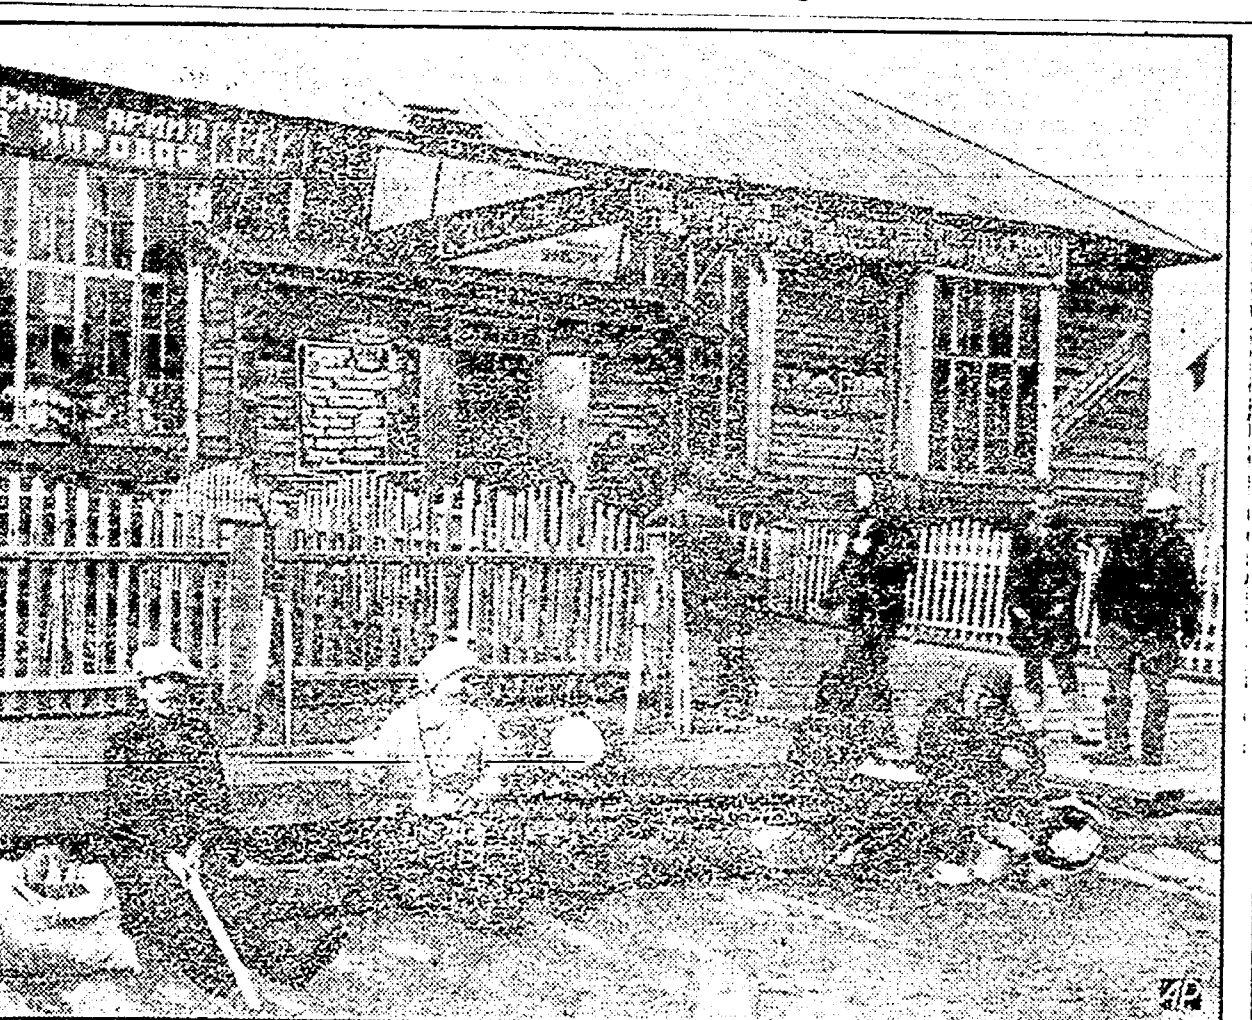

Mix your spices to save time in cooking. All four tablespoonsful of cinnamon to two tablespoonsful each of cloves, nutmeg, ginger and mace. Place them in a large salt shaker and keep it handy.

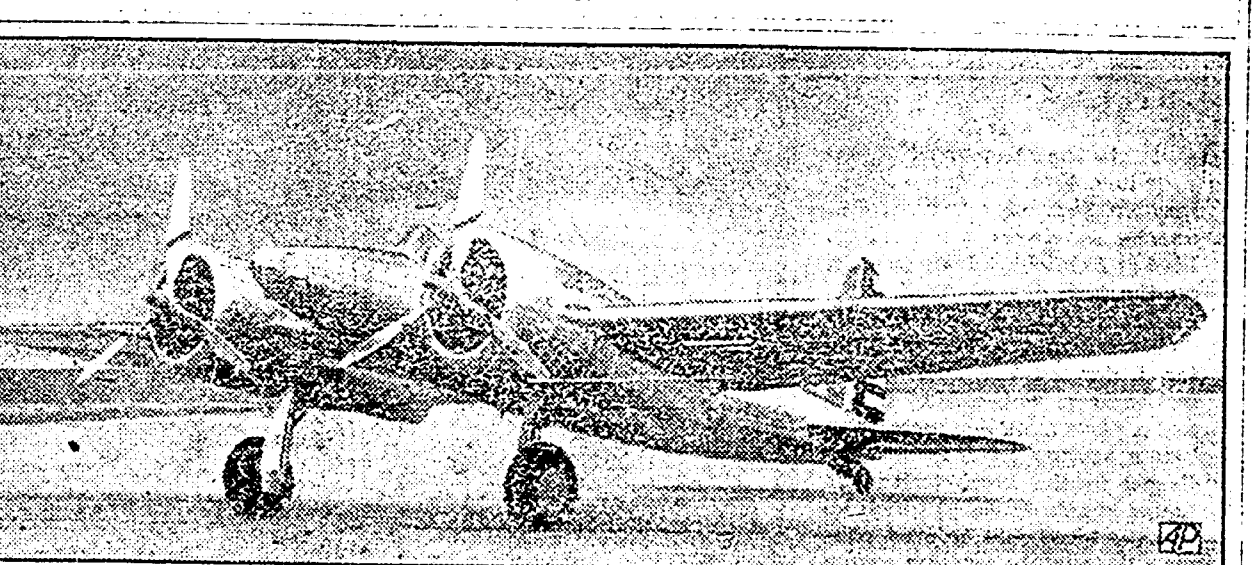

HERE THERE IS ALSO FIRE, literally and figuratively, for as repeated naval incidents occurred in the Mediterranean, France sent this destroyer steaming at full speed during a show of her naval might near the port of Toulon. Later two destroyers hastened to Mindrea following reports that the French aviation base there had been bombed. Meanwhile Britain's warships in that sea waited watchfully while one sped to Barcelona.

IT'S JUST THE TICKET, not the one the cop's handing out, but the streamlined roadster and trailer, part of New York's toy show, a preview of what is in store for Young America this Christmas. Old favorite toys will face tough competition in shiny new gadgets of all descriptions. Alec Wamaker is the traffic officer. Charlie Cross is at the wheel and Ellie Marchenbeck looks out from the trailer. In these toys streamlining comes to its logical conclusion.

THERE'S DARKNESS ON THE DELTA 150 miles north of the Arctic circle in Siberia where four sunless months are setting in upon Port Igarka, a town built upon a frozen swamp. Even in August when this picture was taken outside a department store, inhabitants wore heavy clothing. Banners of the establishment read: "Comrades, help us increase the efficiency of our retail trade."

NO TIME FOR SIGHTSEEING can be spared by pilots of Curtiss' new twin-motored Army attack planes now being tested by the Third Attack Group at Barksdale Field, La., for in addition to flying the ship, controlling two engines, handling four machine guns and bomb racks, each flier must keep an eye on the 200 instruments in the cockpit. With 2,000 horsepower developed, they are believed capable of tremendous speeds.

New York.—Patrolman Bert Willert went off duty at midnight and put his uniform in his car. Emerging from his precinct station a few minutes later, he saw John Bossi, 25, sauntering along wearing the coat, snugly buttoned. "Where'd you get that coat?" Willert asked. "I just bought it in the Bowery for 3 cents," the man replied. "Well, it cost me $35," the officer said and, pointing to his trousers rolled up under Bossi's arm: "What about those?" "Oh, they threw them in for nothing," Willert threw Bossi in the jug on a larceny charge.

Carlisle Hi Scrubs Defeat Maroons, 19-0

Carlisle high school's reserve football team defeated the Gettysburg high reserves at Carlisle Friday afternoon, 19-0.

Greatly outweighed in both line and backfield the Maroons could make little headway in their offensive drives. However, in the first period the locals marched 65 yards via three passes but could get only to the 15-yard line. Several times the Maroons made fine defensive stands.

Included in the locals' starting lineup: J. Sanders and Hess, ends; E. Phiel and M. Weaver, tackles; H. Oyler and C. Stoner, guards; R. Fortenbaugh, center; L. Myers, quarterback; R. Phiel and Shealer, halfbacks, and Shields, fullback. P. Sanders, J. Hafer, N. Myers, Bigham and Shetter broke into the lineup as reserves.

LEST THEY FORGET the memory of China's war dead, another generation erected this monument to peace in Shanghai. Ironically, today's seething Oriental conflict has thrown around its base a barricade of sand bags and barbed wire as a new generation strives desperately to beat back Japanese invaders.

Flashes of Life

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York—Patrolman Bert Willert went off duty at midnight and put his uniform in his car. Emerging from his precinct station a few minutes later, he saw John Bossi, 25, sauntering along wearing the coat, snugly buttoned. "Where'd you get that coat?" Willert asked. "I just bought it in the Bowery for 3 cents," the man replied. "Well, it cost me $35," the officer said and, pointing to his trousers rolled up under Bossi's arm: "What about those?" "Oh, they threw them in for nothing," Willert threw Bossi in the jug on a larceny charge.

REUNION

Uniontown, Pa.—Four generations of the Myers family were in a hospital here today. The day after Mrs. Charles Myers, Jr., gave birth to a daughter there, the child's grandfather and great-grandfather were admitted with broken legs, suffered in an auto accident and a fall.

SOME FUN

Kewanee, Ill.—A brother and sister, 63 and 60 years old, met for the first time in a hospital here. The meeting took place when Charles Weidner, of Goodnight, Oklahoma, visited his sister, Mrs. George McNaught, of Kewanee, a fall.

Carlisle Hi Scrubs Defeat Maroons, 19-0

Carlisle high school's reserve football team defeated the Gettysburg high reserves at Carlisle Friday afternoon, 19-0.

Greatly outweighed in both line and backfield the Maroons could make little headway in their offensive drives. However, in the first period the locals marched 65 yards via three passes but could get only to the 15-yard line. Several times the Maroons made fine defensive stands.

Included in the locals' starting lineup: J. Sanders and Hess, ends; E. Phiel and M. Weaver, tackles; H. Oyler and C. Stoner, guards; R. Fortenbaugh, center; L. Myers, quarterback; R. Phiel and Shealer, halfbacks, and Shields, fullback. P. Sanders, J. Hafer, N. Myers, Bigham and Shetter broke into the lineup as reserves.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

WHAT HAS BEEN

WE CANNOT live upon the past, but we can meditate, and measure the future by its experience. What is before us is as a blank wall, or a screen. It is all veiled from us.

What has been, however, is something vital to us. We carry our memories with us. When a man is old, and his activity of little avail, nothing thrills him more than to recall and talk about what has been—in his life.

And all this is good. It warms the winter of one's life. It gives food that is nourishing to youth, and the aspiring man. We appraise the present largely by the standards that have been ours in the past, and we predict the future by what we know of the present. But what has been is the background by which we guide our growth.

We may regret our losses, but our gains keep prodding us on. That which has been in our lives stimulates our imagination and stiffens our will to go forward in better part.

Emerson said that "every end is a beginning." So it is that what has been may be only a great and glorious beginning! We know the heights of our past. What we look forward to is some event that will surprise and put to shame our meagre attempts of the past.

What an affront to the inquiring mind is the exclamation: "It has always been so, and always will be!" Where would we be if we lived by such a philosophy? There are some things that ought never to have been. War, for instance. And there are things that will be that never have been! Universal peace, for instance. Maybe not for a thousand years, perhaps. But anyway when intelligence becomes of age.

Events are fluid. You can no more dam them than you can stop a tornado within your path. What has been is going to flow into what will be. We all know that a man's past is prophetic of his future. We must learn to reverence the past without asking it to tag us through life.

What has been—is! Experience is something that has been absorbed into the very fibres of our being. Like the alphabet it doesn't have to be learned over again. But from it we form the path by which we travel to new worlds and into undiscovered countries of the mind.

TWO'S COMPANY

By MARGARET GUION HERZOG

The Characters

Nina impulsively married David, but finds she can't forget her intense love for her stepfather.

Richard, the charming, well-tailored stepfather, shamelessly talks of love to Nina.

Honey, Nina's gay, youthful mother, is wild about Richard, her newly acquired husband.

David, a bright young auto salesman, adores Nina and strives to make her happy on his small salary.

Chapter 30

'Business Conference'

"Honey is much more apt to obey you, Doctor," Nina went on. And besides, you can see my position. . . just newly married and all still honeymooning, really—it might look as though I wanted to be . . . well, left alone, for a while."

Old Dr. Fellows laughed. "Well, I'd be glad to speak to her about it, Nina, but you know your mother's a bit obstreperous when it comes to acknowledging ill health . . . or fatigue, as it is in this case."

"Speak to her husband—to Richard, then."

"That might be better." "Call him up, see him, and . . . and let me know what he says, will you? If that doesn't work, though I'm sure it will, I'll get on the job."

"All right, child. I'll do that. Now you won't alarm yourself about your mother's condition, will you? Rest is all she needs."

"Dr. Fellows, that was an attack of gripe she had, wasn't it?" "Yes. It was gripe."

They said goodbye . . . and, as always in her thoughts concerning Richard, Nina found herself torn between two conflicting things: what was right . . . and what she—wanted.

The door-bell rang, and Nina took a deep breath . . . opened it.

"Nina."

She backed away, hastily. "I asked you to come here, Richard, dear," she found herself using an absurd, Sunday-school voice, "because there's nothing—well, clandestine, about it. This is a business conference."

"May I put my feet up on a chair, and light a cigar? May I keep my derby on then?"

Nina said, reproachfully: "You're making fun of me—bad Richard."

And he said: "Of course I am . . . bad."

She moved to an isolated walnut chair.

"Sit down, won't you?" "Thanks."

He was evidently humoring her. "Honey tells me that you're planning to leave on a cruise, in about 10 days," she began . . . innocently.

Richard pulled out his cigarette case, but stared at it, without pressing the spring.

"Yes-s-s," he frowned a little. "Nina, my-dear, I couldn't do anything but agree to go . . . urge Honey to, in fact, since it involved a matter of her health."

Something more than the terrible feeling of attraction she felt for him, welled up in her . . . a feeling of admiration, as well. He was fine.

It was especially moving, because it was the first time she had felt it for him. Her love for him had been a wrong thing, and therefore, his love for her was, too. She had had to acknowledge that. But now he was being—splendid; and she had a hard time to keep from going over into his arms.

'It Was A Miracle'

Quite suddenly, she found herself asking a question that had been in her heart for weeks.

"Richard . . . tell me, how do you feel about Honey?" She had to know.

He lit his cigarette now, blew a puff of smoke up to the ceiling. It looked like a cloud against the blue of the walls.

"I wonder if I can explain to you," he answered slowly, weighing his words. "I'm tremendously fond of her, Nina. I . . . I love her, I think, too; only . . ."

"Why do you marry her, Richard, so suddenly? You have to have some greater urge than fondness . . . than thinking you love someone . . . to do a thing like that."

He laughed a little . . . bitterly. "You had one, didn't you . . . dearest?"

"Yes . . ." softly. She was looking down.

"To answer your question: I thought, at that time, my feeling for Honey was the biggest thing I had ever known . . . it was—then. Nina . . . Nina, dear, am I to be blamed if I do a perfectly honorable thing, and then a miracle happens . . . like our meeting?"

She said, more softly still: "How can you be?"

"It was—a miracle, you know. I think I knew it from the first . . . but I wouldn't admit it to myself."

"Oh! Who manages these things! . . . What a dreadful, cynical sense of humor! Oh, Richard, why . . . why couldn't we have met before?"

They were looking at each other from their two little stiff chairs. Nina thought that they both looked taut and strained . . . ready to go to each other . . . like runners waiting for the crack of the start-er's pistol.

She was so afraid that one of them would break away and ruin all chance of further thoughtful discussion, that she said: "Wait . . . although neither of them had moved."

"I called this a business conference, Richard . . . well, in a way, it is. Here's what I wanted to say: it seems to me that the necessity of a rest for Honey, immediately, has taken this . . . this whole matter out of our hands . . . Do you hate the word 'Providence' as much as I do? . . . well, that's what it is, all the same."

"Divine Providence!" His under-lip shot out for a moment, and one of his eyebrows arched itself, cynically. "I know . . . you're going to tell me that this separation will—cure us!"

"It will," she told him, soberly. "If we try."

"Do you want to—try, little Nina?"

"Don't . . . you?"

He said, after an instant's pause: "Hester never forgot her love . . . And it was so true that there was no answering him."

After a minute, she said: "But we can't go on . . . this way . . ."

"No."

"It's . . . it's nothing, is it, Richard?"

And when he echoed: "Nothing!" it was a passionate outburst of all the things their love might mean . . . all in that one word, "Nothing."

And now he did cross over to her. Took her two hands in his, and looked down at them, solemnly.

"Nina," he said, "if I put every effort that is in me to forget you while I'm away . . . to realize what a wonderful wife I have got . . . to . . ."

He smiled, "to be good; and then if all my endeavors fail, if nothing can change my longing for you . . . Nina, will you . . .?"

"Wait, darling, till we have failed." But the barest possible hint of a possible future happiness with Richard sent the blood thundering through her veins. Her cheeks burned, and the little pulse at her wrist hammered so that he felt it.

He bent his lips to it, and murmured: "Why, you're not the doctor, beloved . . . you're the patient!"

With his head still lowered, he glanced up at her . . . a wicked, human, amused glance, that gave the lie to all his previous grave behavior.

"Be serious, Richard, and go further away from me. You've got to be serious. We're two disgraced people."

And he said: "We're two people in love, Nina . . . and all the dis-tates of your heavenly little conscience can't alter it. Oh, I'll try all right . . ." he silenced her interruption, "and you'll try, but . . . it will make no difference. Mark my words."

A pause. Then: "I don't have to ask you to be—dear, to Honey?"

"No. You don't."

"Goody . . . Richard. I'll see you again, but this goody is ours."

He wanted to kiss her, and she wanted to have him, but some feeling of loyalty to David made her turn away. Silly, probably—this one denial—in view of the tremendous disloyalty of her desires . . . but she said: "No . . . Richard," and she held out a small hand. Icy cold. "Goody, then . . . my dear."

His smile was mocking and—loving, all in one.

Richard's Flower

Nina opened her handbag and reached in for her latchkey.

From under the crack at her front door, loud sniffling sounds could be heard; and a few particles of dust were actually sucked under, by Button's vacuum-cleaner nose.

Followed a loud sneeze, as a result of the inhalation; and—when

Nina opened the door—his usual welcoming onslaught.

She just let him go ahead and maul her, and she patted his head in a detached sort of way . . . while all the time her thoughts were winging their way down the harbor, to Richard.

She had just come back from the pier. She could see him standing there at the rail . . . so brown and handsome, with his polo coat over his arm . . .

Honey had kept walking up forward, as the ship backed out of its slip, to prolong their adieux . . . and Nina could still see her reaching up and taking the flower from her husband's lapel . . . throwing it, wildly. For once her aim had been good, and it had landed on the hat of the man in front of Nina.

She retrieved it, quickly . . . it was on her breast, now.

Poor little Honey, throwing Richard's flower to Nina . . . all unsuspecting.

She could still see her step-father's smile.

No. 15—More About Lower Marsh Creek Cemetery

LAST week we wrote briefly concerning Lower Marsh Creek Cemetery. Today we think it would be proper, before continuing with our subject, to give a thumbnail sketch of the Lower Marsh Creek Church.

About the years 1734-36, emigrants from Scotland and the north of Ireland, settled on the "red lands" in the eastern part of York county. Of course they were rigid Presbyterians and the Lower Marsh Creek Church was organized by them in 1748. The first minister was the Rev. Andrew Bay, a Scotchman. His pastorate extended from 1748-58 and his salary was sixty pounds per annum. Rev. John Simons served the congregation from 1765 to 1774, and in 1780 the church formed a union with Tom's Creek Church (Emmitsburg). In 1783 the Rev. John McKnight became pastor of the joint congregations. He resigned in 1789, and was followed by Rev. William Paxton in 1792. Rev. Paxton served the congregation for forty-nine years. He died at his

Out of the Past

Happenings of days gone by as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg
Times the files reveal.

TEN YEARS AGO

Couple Married at St. John's: Miss Etta May Knouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce C. Knouse, Arendtsville, and R. Claire Van Dyke, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Van Dyke, Goldenville, were married at eight o'clock at St. John's, this state, by the Rev. T. C. Hesson.

Both the bride and bridegroom were graduated from the Arendtsville vocational school. For four years Mr. Van Dyke taught school at Guernsey, but this year he has been teaching at Grape Vine.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Dyke will reside in their new home along the Biglerville road.

Camp Fire Girls Hold Tramp Party: The Chippakhoong Camp Fire Girls held a "Tramp Party" at the home of Miss Geraldine Hartzell Friday evening.

Refreshments of bread, bologna and canned corn were served around the camp fire. Miss Roberta Dearth was chairman in charge of this party which was given in honor of the five honor girls. Misses Rosa Aughinbaugh, Ruth Weaver, Goldie Bollinger, Anne Keeth and Peggy Zinn.

Anniversary of Lincoln's Speech Will Be Marked: Services marking the anniversary of the delivery of Lincoln's dedicatory speech at the national cemetery here will be held by Gettysburg Camp 112, Sons of Union Veterans in the post rooms, November 18, it was decided at a meeting of the camp Friday night. Newly-elected officers were installed at the meeting by O. G. McPherson, past commander. The new officers are Jesse Snyder, commander; William J. Shields, senior vice commander; the Rev. Luther B. Haffer, junior vice commander; William L. Meals, secretary; Clayton A. Myers, treasurer; G. Harry Roth, Harry Koch and E. S. Strausbaugh, camp councilors; the Rev. W. D. E. Scott, patriotic instructor; Dr. C. B. Stauffer, chaplain; Charles F. Bodley, guide; Joseph Riggs, color bearer; John Steinhour, outside guard, and Frank Waybright, inside guard.

Wed by Squire: One of the first items of business to be transacted by Justice J. U. Appier on Friday morning was marrying Miss Emma Smith and Roy Wolf, both of Strabon township.

Colorful Costumes Seen in Mummer's Parade: Immediately after the parade disbanded the streets ran riot with revelers and confetti-throwing reached peak proportions.

The judges who awarded the 18 prizes failed to keep a list of the winners. The judges were C. W. Gardner, E. H. Markley, John Storm, E. C. Ott, E. C. Bream and C. K. Hartzell.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles furnished the funds for the two bands in the parade. The Chamber of Commerce had general supervision of the celebration, with a committee comprising L. W. Cook, Henry Scharf and David Blocher, in charge. A. B. Plank was marshal of the parade.

Personal: Mrs. Leah Robinson, of Baltimore, is the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Chester N. Gitt, Baltimore street.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Miller, Baltimore street, spent Monday and Tuesday in Harrisburg.

Misses Anna and Alice Black entertained a company of friends at their home in Flora Dale Thursday night in celebration of the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ryland Wright.

Dr. and Mrs. Joaquin Miranda have left for their home in Santiago, Cuba, after a visit with their sons, William and Mario Miranda, students at the Gettysburg Academy.

RIP'S BIRTHDAY

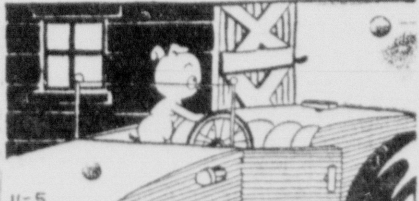

RIP could hear them whispering and see them dashing here and there as he sat in Willy Nilly's automobile Two-Ways out in the shed while they were getting ready for his birthday celebration.

He thought they would never ring the bell for him as they had promised to do. He tried to doze because he thought that would take up a little time. He tried to think of all the places where he had hidden bones. But his mind now was on his birthday celebration and nothing else.

At last he heard the ringing of a bell.

"It didn't take you long to jump out of Two-Ways and get over here!" smiled Willy Nilly, as Rip bounded up the steps.

Mrs. Quacko Duck waddled up to Rip and put a wreath of leaves and pond grasses the ducks had gathered from around the pond about his neck. Willy Nilly had helped fasten them together with the string that Top Notch had brought over.

The bears had each saved a little out of their own birthday gifts for Rip. He was indeed pleased at this devotion because he knew how hungry the bears were at this time of the year.

Sweet Face had found an old ball which Rip had lost and Rip was so happy to have it again because it was a ball on which he could chew and chew without having it going to pieces.

Christopher Columbus Crow gave Rip a fine, big bone and Willy Nilly had prepared a birthday supper in the dog's honor. He sat at the head of the table now and they all ate, and between bites wishing him "Happy Birthday."

P. U. C. Orders Extra 'Phone Cost Dropped

Harrisburg, Nov. 6 (AP)—The state government today ordered the Bell Telephone company to remove the 15 cents extra charge from 178,500 hand-set telephones in use in Pennsylvania to save customers about $300,000 a year.

The public utility commission, which officially handed down the order late Friday, said it was "the second step in the sweeping investigation into the operations of the Bell Telephone company of Pennsylvania," began October 27.

The company was ordered to file a tariff supplement effective December 8, eliminating the extra charge.

At present, subscribers are required to pay 15 cents a month extra for 12 months for the privilege of having a hand-set instrument.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

WHAT HAS BEEN

WE CANNOT live upon the past, but we can meditate, and measure the future by its experience. What is before us is as a blank wall, or a screen. It is all veiled from us.

What has been, however, is something vital to us. We carry our memories with us. When a man is old, and his activity of little avail, nothing thrills him more than to recall and talk about what has been—in his life.

And all this is good. It warms the winter of one's life. It gives food that is nourishing to youth, and the aspiring man. We appraise the present largely by the standards that have been ours in the past, and we predict the future by what we know of the present. But what has been is the background by which we gird our growth.

We may regret our losses, but our gains keep prodding us on. That which has been in our lives stimulates our imagination and stiffens our will to go forward in better part.

Emerson said that "every end is a beginning." So it is that what has been may be only a great and glorious beginning! We know the heights of our past. What we look forward to is some event that will surprise and put to shame our meagre attempts of the past.

What an affront to the inquiring mind is the exclamation: "It has always been so, and always will be!" Where would we be if we lived by such a philosophy? There are some things that ought never to have been. War, for instance. And there are things that will be that never have been! Universal peace, for instance. Maybe not for a thousand years, perhaps. But anyway when intelligence becomes of age.

Events are fluid. You can no more dam them than you can stop a tornado within your path. What has been is going to flow into what will be. We all know that a man's past is prophetic of his future. We must learn to reverence the past without asking it to tag us through life.

What has been—is! Experience is something that has been absorbed into the very fibres of our being. Like the alphabet it doesn't have to be learned over again. But from it we form the path by which we travel to new worlds and into undiscovered countries of the mind.

TWO'S COMPANY

By MARGARET GUION HERZOG

The Characters

Nina impulsively married David, but finds she can't forget her intense love for her stepfather.

Richard, the charming, well-tailored stepfather, shamelessly talks of love to Nina.

Honey, Nina's gay, youthful mother, is wild about Richard, her newly acquired husband.

David, a bright young auto salesman, adores Nina and strives to make her happy on his small salary.

Chapter 30

'Business Conference'

"Honey is much more apt to obey you, Doctor." Nina went on. And besides, you can see my position. . . just newly married and all still honeymooning, really—it might look as though I wanted to be . . . well, left alone, for a while."

Old Dr. Fellows laughed. "Well, I'd be glad to speak to her about it, Nina, but you know your mother's a bit obstreperous when it comes to acknowledging ill health . . . or fatigue, as it is in this case."

"Speak to her husband—to Richard, then."

"Call him up, see him, and . . . let me know what he says, will you? If that doesn't work, though I'm sure it will, I'll get on the job."

"All right, child. I'll do that. Now you won't alarm yourself about your mother's condition, will you? Rest is all she needs."

"Dr. Fellows, that was an attack of gripe she had, wasn't it?"

"Yes. It was gripe."

They said goodbye . . . and, as always in her thoughts concerning Richard, Nina found herself torn between two conflicting things: what was right . . . and what she wanted.

The door-bell rang, and Nina took a deep breath . . . opened it.

"Nina. . ."

She backed away, hastily. "I asked you to come here, Richard, dear," she found herself using an absurd, Sunday-school voice, "because there's nothing—well, clandestine, about it. This is a business conference."

"May I put my feet up on a chair, and light a cigar? May I keep my derby on then?"

Nina said, reproachfully: "You're making fun of me—bad Richard."

And he said: "Of course I am . . . bad."

She moved to an isolated walnut chair.

"Sit down, won't you?"

"Thanks."

He was evidently humoring her. "Honey tells me that you're planning to leave on a cruise, in about 10 days," she began . . . innocently.

Richard pulled out his cigarette case, but stared at it, without pressing the spring.

"Yes-s-s." He frowned a little. "Nina, my—dear, I couldn't do anything but agree to go . . . urge Honey to, in fact, since it involved a matter of her health."

Something more than the terrible feeling of attraction she felt for him, welled up in her . . . a feeling of admiration, as well. He was fine. It was especially moving, because it was the first time she had felt it for him. Her love for him had been a wrong thing, and therefore, his love for her was, too. She had had to acknowledge that. But now he was being—splendid; and she had a hard time to keep from going over into his arms.

"It Was A Miracle!" Quite suddenly, she found herself asking a question that had been in her heart for weeks.

"Richard . . . tell me, how do you feel about Honey?" She had to know.

He lit his cigarette now, blew a puff of smoke up to the ceiling. It looked like a cloud against the blue of the walls.

"I wonder if I can explain to you," he answered slowly, weighing his words. "I'm tremendously . . . fond of her, Nina. I . . . I love her, I think, too; only . . ."

"Why did you marry her, Richard, so suddenly? You have to have some greater urge than fondness . . . than thinking you love someone . . . to do a thing like that."

He laughed a little . . . bitterly. "You had one, didn't you . . . dearest?"

"Yes . . ." softly. She was looking down.

"To answer your question: I thought, at that time, my feeling for Honey was the biggest thing I had ever known . . . it was—then. Nina . . . Nina, dear, am I to be blamed if I do a perfectly honorable thing, and then a miracle happens . . . like our meeting?"

She said, more softly still: "How can you be?"

"It was—a miracle, you know. I think I knew it from the first . . . but I wouldn't admit it to myself."

"Oh! Who manages these things! . . . What a dreadful, cynical sense of humor! Oh, Richard, why . . . why couldn't we have met before?"

They were looking at each other from their two little stiff chairs. Nina thought that they both looked taut and strained . . . ready to go to each other . . . like runners waiting for the crack of the starter's pistol.

She was so afraid that one of them would break away and ruin all chance of further thoughtful discussion, that she said: "Wait . . . although neither of them had moved."

"I called this a business conference, Richard . . . well, in a way, it is. Here's what I wanted to say: it seems to me that the necessity of a rest for Honey, immediately, has taken this . . . this whole matter out of our hands . . . Do you hate the word 'Providence' as much as I do? . . . well, that's what it is, all the same."

"Divine Providence!" His under-lip shot out for a moment, and one of his eyebrows arched itself, cynically. "I know . . . you're going to tell me that this separation will—cure us!"

"It will," she told him, soberly, "if we try."

"Do you want to—try, little Nina?"

"Don't . . . you?"

He said, after an instant's pause: "Hester never forgot her love . . . And it was so true that there was no answering him."

After a minute, she said: "But we can't go on . . . this way . . ."

"No."

"It's . . . It's nothing, is it, Richard?"

And when he echoed: "Nothing!" it was a passionate outburst of all the things their love might mean . . . all in that one word, "Nothing."

And now he did cross over to her. Took her two hands in his, and looked down at them, solemnly.

"Nina," he said, "if I put every effort that's in me to forget you while I'm away . . . to realize what a wonderful wife I have got . . . to . . ."

"Wait, darling, till we have failed." But the barest possible hint of a possible future happiness with Richard sent the blood thundering through her veins. Her cheeks burned, and the little pulse at her wrist hammered so that he felt it.

He bent his lips to it, and murmured: "Why, you're not the doctor beloved . . . you're the patient!"

With his head still lowered, he glanced up at her . . . a wicked, human, amused glance, that gave the lie to all his previous grave behavior.

"Be serious, Richard, and go farther away from me. You've got to be serious. We're two disgraceful people."

And he said: "We're two people in love, Nina . . . and all the dictates of your heavenly little conscience can't alter it. Oh, I'll try all right . . ." he silenced her interruption, "and you'll try, but . . . it will make no difference. Mark my words."

A pause. Then: "I don't have to ask you to be—dear, to Honey?"

"No. You don't."

"Goodbye . . . Richard. I'll see you again, but this goodbye is ours."

He wanted to kiss her, and she wanted to have him, but some feeling of loyalty to David made her turn away. Silly, probably—this one denial—in view of the tremendous disloyalty of her desires . . . but she said: "No . . . Richard," and she held out a small hand. Icy cold.

"Goodbye, then . . . my dear."

His smile was mocking and—loving, all in one.

Richard's Flower

Nina opened her handbag and reached in for her latchkey.

From under the crack at her front door, loud sniffing sounds could be heard; and a few particles of dust were actually sucked under, by Button's vacuum-cleaner nose.

Followed a loud sneeze, as a result of the inhalation; and—when

Nina opened the door—his usual welcoming onslaught.

She just let him go ahead and maul her, and she patted his head in a detached sort of way . . . while all the time her thoughts were winging their way down the harbor, to Richard.

She had just come back from the pier. She could see him standing there at the rail . . . so brown and handsome, with his polo coat over his arm . . .

Honey had kept walking up forward, as the ship backed out of its slip, to prolong their adieux . . . and Nina could still see her reaching up and taking the flower from her husband's lapel . . . throwing it, wildly. For once her aim had been good, and it had landed on the hat of the man in front of Nina.

She retrieved it, quickly . . . it was on her breast, now.

Poor little Honey, throwing Richard's flower to Nina . . . all unsuspecting.

She could still see her stepfather's smile.

Backgrounds of Adams County

By B. F. MACPHERSON

No. 15—More About Lower Marsh Creek Cemetery

LAST week we wrote briefly concerning Lower Marsh Creek Cemetery. Today we think it would be proper, before continuing with our subject, to give a thumbnail sketch of the Lower Marsh Creek Church.

About the years 1734-36, emigrants from Scotland and the north of Ireland, settled on the "red lands" in the eastern part of York county. Of course they were rigid Presbyterians and the Lower Marsh Creek Church was organized by them in 1748. The first minister was the Rev. Andrew Bay, a Scotchman. His pastorate extended from 1748-58 and his salary was sixty pounds per annum. Rev. John Simons served the congregation from 1765 to 1774, and in 1780 the church formed a union with Tom's Creek Church (Emmitsburg). In 1783 the Rev. John McKnight became pastor of the joint congregations. He resigned in 1789, and was followed by Rev. William Paxton in 1792. Rev. Paxton served the congregation for forty-nine years. He died at his residence in Fairfield, Pa., Oct. 16, 1845, in the 86th year of his age. In 1843, Rev. Dr. Clark became the minister, and when he was dismissed in 1856, this church and the Church of Great Congewago, at Hunterstown, were united in a pastoral charge, and in 1857, Rev. John B. Warner, became the minister of the joint congregations.

The first church erected by this congregation was on the banks of Marsh Creek, near where the graveyard now is. It was a rude structure, built of logs, with furniture corresponding. The Presbytery of Carlisle was organized in the church.

In 1790 the present church was built on the Fairfield road. The building is of stone, and when first built the isles were paved with brick. There was no means of heating the building until nine years after its erection, at which time stoves were introduced. Evidently the Scotch-Irish could appreciate their religion more fully if they were decidedly uncomfortable.

To return to the cemetery. As we enter the gates the first outstanding stone we see is a long, black slate stone, containing thereon the following inscription:

"Here Lyes the Boy of Samuel McCullough Sen., who departed this Life: May 5th, 1778. Aged 60 years."

Here Also Lyeth the Bodys of 4 of his Children, Elizabeth McCullough, who Departed this Life August 1, 1749. Aged 4 years.

Grizze McCullough, who departed This life July 20, 17—; And Margaret McCullough, who Departed this life April 20, 1753—Aged 5 years & 7 months, And Also an Infant Child."

If anyone could give us any information regarding this family we would more than appreciate it.

A SHORT distance from the Mc-

Cullough plot we find the graves of Rev. Wm. Paxton, his wife, and other members of his family. The marker at Rev. Paxton's grave is rather pretentious, a large flat stone on a foundation about 20 inches high. The inscription on the flat top is as follows:

"Sacred to the memory of Rev. William Paxton.

Born in Lancaster County, Pa. on the 1st day of April, 1760. Died at Fairfield, Adams County, on the 16th day of April, 1845. An accomplished scholar, an eminent divine, a faithful pastor, a devoted husband, an affectionate parent, a kind friend and a pious man. For more than half a century he preached the Gospel to the Presbyterians of Lower Marsh Creek, of which he was the loved and beloved pastor. His earthly remains repose here, among those of his children, both natural and spiritual, awaiting their summons to rise to a glorious Immortality."

ROBBER KILLS FORMER ATHLETE

Chester, Pa., Nov. 6 (AP)—Wesley Major, 23-year-old former Chester high school athlete, was shot and killed today as he grappled with a hold-up man. Police Sergeant William Stewart said the shooting occurred in a disorderly house, which had been raided by police a short time before.

Major died in a hospital from a bullet wound in the head. His assailant and a companion escaped.

A woman, identified by Stewart as the operator of the house, and three men were taken into custody as material witnesses.

AUTO NEWS HAPPENINGS IN THE COUNTY

OLDSMOBILE HAS NEW GEAR LEVER

With the presentation of its new models for 1938, Oldsmobile announces that the automatic safety transmission—offered for the first time a few months ago as optional equipment on the Oldsmobile Eight only—is now optional at extra cost on both the Six and Eight.

This announcement means that both Oldsmobile Six and Eight purchasers will be able to acquire the automatic gear changer—the greatest single driving aid ever offered the motoring public.

Oldsmobile's automatic safety transmission, which not only produces new results in car performance, but also establishes high standards of safety and economy, is unlike any device ever before offered the public. It is a new kind of transmission which does away with the ordinary routine of gear shifting and yet gives the driver complete command of gear selection, car control and all-around performance. The conventional gear shift lever is completely eliminated, leaving ample room for three adults in the front seat. Instead, a short, convenient hand lever control is located just under the wheel on the steering column. This lever permits the driver to select reverse or neutral or either one of two forward speed ranges.

BIBLE CONFERENCE

An eight-day Bible conference will be held by the Upper Conewago congregation of Southern Pennsylvania at the Mummert meeting house near East Berlin, beginning Sunday and concluding November 14. Service will be held during the evenings.

Ordinary ropes 12 and 14 inches in diameter were strong enough to haul the fire-wrecked Morro Castle from the beach at Ashbury Park, New Jersey.

United States exports of chemicals and related products were valued at $122,000,000 during the first eight months of this year, double the value of 1933 shipments.

New Nash Motor

This newly developed Nash motor is reported to have many less parts, and is hailed as the greatest gasoline engine advance in 20 years. It produces, it is said, 10 per cent more power, and will give 12 per cent more gas mileage. Shown with the motor are (right) Charles W. Nash, famous auto maker who is chairman of the board of Nash-Kelvinator corporation, and George W. Mason, president.

1938 Motor License Tags Will Be Mailed Monday

Harrisburg, Nov. 6 (AP).—Envelopes containing the 1938 motor license tags will go in the mails Monday, bearing this legend: "Speed limit—40 miles an hour. Don't break the law. Secretary of Revenue John B. Kelly."

The speed limit now is 50 miles an hour and the Secretary of Revenue is J. Griffith Boardman. These changes happened since the envelopes were ordered, printed and delivered to the state and to save extra expense, they were used.

Boardman said today there were about a half million envelopes so stamped.

The state has 2,000,000 registered vehicles. The plates for next year have a gold background and blue numerals, the opposite of this year.

BEATS BROTHER AT POLLS

Bradford, Nov. 6 (AP).—A brother or unseated a brother as Burgess of the McKean county borough of Lewis Run in Tuesday's voting. Pat-ty Ross, Republican incumbent, lost to Peter Ross, his Democratic brother.

2 NEW MODELS FORM CHRYSLER LINE FOR 1938

Radical changes in exterior appearance, greatly refined interiors, larger and more powerful engines of improved design, longer wheelbase, larger hydraulic brakes and a score of mechanical refinements and improvements feature the two new cars comprising the Chrysler line for 1938. These cars again are designated as the Chrysler Royal and Chrysler Imperial respectively. The Urich Motor company, Fred Urich, proprietor, is the Chrysler agency in this area.

Although the Airflow will not be continued in the same form as produced last year, the company makes clear that it has not been dropped, since the Airflow engineering features and principles of construction have been incorporated in all Chrysler models. Chief among these are the scientific weight distribution and Airflow springing that have produced such remarkable riding qualities in Chrysler cars. The owner who desires seven-passenger capacity, in a heavy and luxurious car on an exceptionally long wheelbase will find it in the custom Imperial models.

The Chrysler Royal, with which Chrysler again will bid for business in the low-price field, has been increased in wheelbase from 116 to 119 inches. Whatever the change in the price of this model it will preserve its relative competitive position. It comes in ten body styles as follows: Four-door sedan, four-door touring sedan, brougham, touring brougham, convertible coupe, convertible sedan, rumble seat coupe and coupe on the 119-inch wheelbase and seven-passenger sedan and sedan-limousine on a special 136-inch chassis.

The wheelbase of the Imperial has been raised from 121 to 135 inches. This car, as the company expresses it, gives "remarkable performance at moderate price." It comes in six body styles, namely four-door touring sedan, touring brougham, convertible coupe, convertible sedan, coupe and rumble seat coupe.

The custom Imperial now has a wheelbase of 144 inches, four inches more than last year's corresponding model although the over all length remains unchanged. It comes in three body styles—seven-passenger sedan, seven-passenger sedan-limousine and five-passenger sedan. In size, power and beauty and completeness of appointments it is Chrysler's conception of the ultimate in luxurious motoring.

CONSIDERS SIT-DOWNS

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Supreme Court undertook today to decide whether to review litigation involving constitutionality of sit-down strikes. Other cases before the justices included two appeals by the National Labor Relations board requesting compliance with orders issued against Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., and the Delaware-New Jersey Ferry company.

Just Folks

by EDGAR A. GUEST

THOUGHTS OF A BIRTHDAY

This grateful heart of mine rebelled At what my mind so feebly tells.

And all this day Has quarreled with my groping pen With words like this: "No, try again;

There's more to say! Surely you better can express The depth of human gratefulness.

"You are his mind. I'm just his heart

And I must play a voiceless part.

Pay heed to me! Why grope for words? I overflow With gratitude I ache to show.

Why must you be So poor a medium to reveal What always hearts so deeply feel?"

The worried mind kept answering back:

"The trouble is, old Heart, I lack, And all minds do.

The gift of words that can portray The things which you would have me say

And that is true. There is no mind that can impart In words the promptings of the heart."

And still they quarrel! Still the mind

Insists 'tis difficult to find The perfect phrase;

Nor ever shall this difference end. So high the heart holds every friend

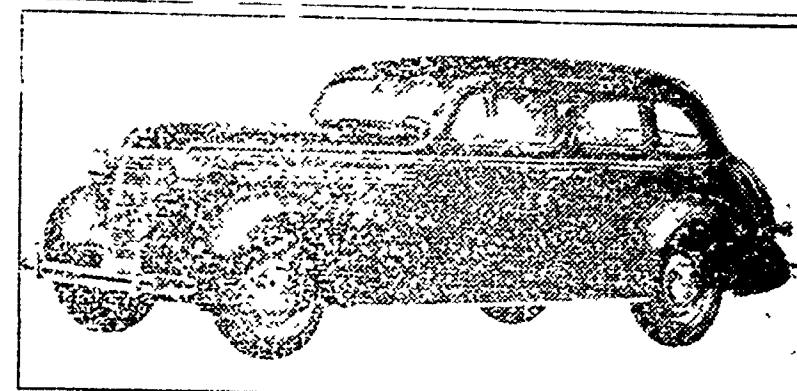

Who cheers my days. The mind will always lack the art To voice an overflowing heart.

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP).—Organized labor's peace negotiators, beginning a week-end recess, showed more optimism today than at any time in recent weeks. Although none of the ten C. I. O. or three A. F. of L. delegates to the peace conference would say a reconciliation was in sight, all reported progress in reaching the heart of their problem—jurisdiction of conflicting unions.

AUTO NEWS HAPPENINGS IN THE COUNTY

OLDSMOBILE HAS NEW GEAR LEVER

With the presentation of its new models for 1938, Oldsmobile announces that the automatic safety transmission—offered for the first time a few months ago as optional equipment on the Oldsmobile Eight only—is now optional at extra cost on both the Six and Eight.

This announcement means that both Oldsmobile Six and Eight purchasers will be able to acquire the automatic gear changer—the greatest single driving aid ever offered the motoring public.

Oldsmobile's automatic safety transmission, which not only produces new results in car performance, but also establishes high standards of safety and economy, is unlike any device ever before offered the public. It is a new kind of transmission which does away with the ordinary routine of gear shifting and yet gives the driver complete command of gear selection, car control and all-around performance.

The conventional gear shift lever is completely eliminated, leaving ample room for three adults in the front seat. Instead, a short, convenient hand lever control is located just under the wheel on the steering column. This lever permits the driver to select reverse or neutral or either one of two forward speed ranges.

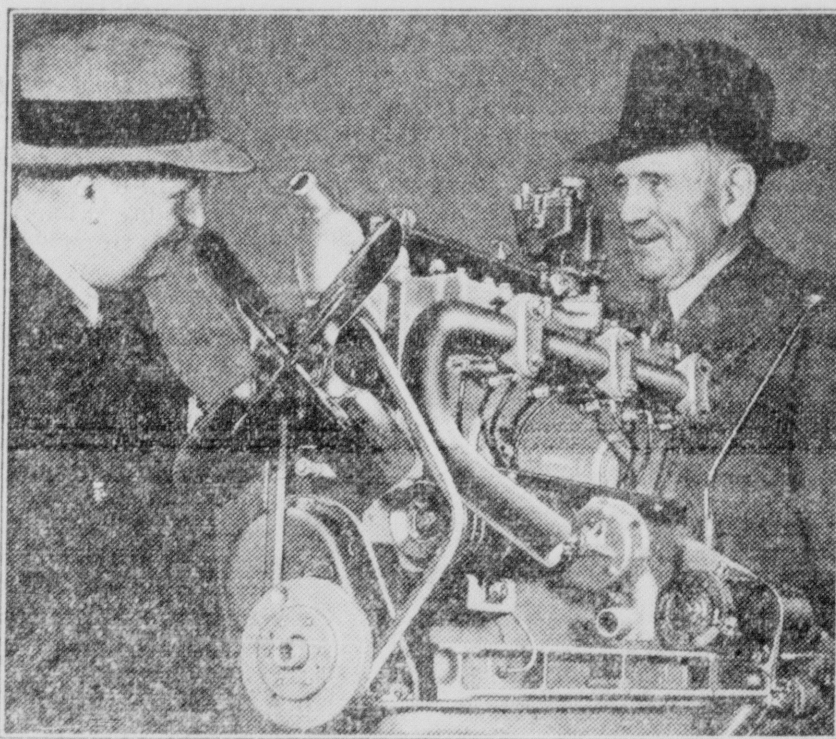

BIBLE CONFERENCE

An eight-day Bible conference will be held by the Upper Conewago congregation of Southern Pennsylvania at the Mummert meeting house near East Berlin, beginning Sunday and concluding November 14. Service will be held during the evenings.

Ordinary ropes 12 and 14 inches in diameter were strong enough to haul the fire-wrecked Morro Castle from the beach at Ashbury Park, New Jersey.

United States exports of chemicals and related products were valued at $122,000,000 during the first eight months of this year, double the value of 1933 shipments.

New Nash Motor

This newly developed Nash motor is reported to have many less parts, and is hailed as the greatest gasoline engine advance in 20 years. It produces, it is said, 10 per cent more power, and will give 12 per cent more gas mileage. Shown with the motor are (right) Charles W. Nash, famous auto maker who is chairman of the board of Nash-Kelvinator corporation, and George W. Mason, president.

1938 Motor License Tags Will Be Mailed Monday

Harrisburg, Nov. 6 (AP).—Envelopes containing the 1938 motor license tags will go in the mails Monday, bearing this legend:

"Speed limit—40 miles an hour. Don't break the law. Secretary of Revenue John B. Kelly."

The speed limit now is 50 miles an hour and the Secretary of Revenue is J. Griffith Boardman. These changes happened since the envelopes were ordered, printed and delivered to the state and to save extra expense, they were used.

Boardman said today there were about a half million envelopes so stamped.

The state has 2,000,000 registered vehicles. The plates for next year have a gold background and blue numerals, the opposite of this year.

BEATS BROTHER AT POLLS

Bradford, Nov. 6 (AP).—A brother unseated a brother as Burgess of the McKean county borough of Lewis Run in Tuesday's voting. Patry Ross, Republican incumbent, lost to Peter Ross, his Democratic brother.

2 NEW MODELS FORM CHRYSLER LINE FOR 1938

Radical changes in exterior appearance, greatly refined interiors, larger and more powerful engines of improved design, longer wheelbase, larger hydraulic brakes and a score of mechanical refinements and improvements feature the two new cars comprising the Chrysler line for 1938. These cars again are designated as the Chrysler Royal and Chrysler Imperial respectively. The Chrysler Motor company, Fred Urich, proprietor, is the Chrysler agency in this area.

Although the Airflow will not be continued in the same form as produced last year, the company makes clear that it has not been dropped, since the Airflow engineering features and principles of construction have been incorporated in all Chrysler models. Chief among these are the scientific weight distribution and Airflow springing that have produced such remarkable riding qualities in Chrysler cars. The owner who desires seven-passenger capacity, in a heavy and luxurious car on an exceptionally long wheelbase will find it in the custom Imperial models.

The Chrysler Royal, with which Chrysler again will bid for business in the low-price field, has been increased in wheelbase from 116 to 119 inches. Whatever the change in the price of this model it will preserve its relative competitive position. It comes in ten body styles as follows: Four-door sedan, four-door touring sedan, brougham, touring brougham, convertible coupe, convertible sedan, rumble seat coupe and coupe on the 119-inch wheelbase and seven-passenger sedan and sedan-limousine on a special 136-inch chassis.

The wheelbase of the Imperial has been raised from 121 to 135 inches. This car, as the company expresses it, gives "remarkable performance at moderate price." It comes in six body styles namely four-door touring sedan, touring brougham, convertible coupe, convertible sedan, coupe and rumble seat coupe.

The custom Imperial now has a wheelbase of 144 inches, four inches more than last year's corresponding model although the over all length remains unchanged. It comes in three body styles—seven-passenger sedan, seven-passenger sedan-limousine and five-passenger sedan. In size, power and beauty and completeness of appointments it is Chrysler's conception of the ultimate in luxurious motoring.

CONSIDERS SIT-DOWNS

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Supreme Court undertook today to decide whether to review litigation involving constitutionality of sit-down strikes. Other cases before the justices included two appeals by the National Labor Relations board requesting compliance with orders issued against Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., and the Delaware-New Jersey Ferry company.

Just Folks

by
EDGAR A. GUEST

THOUGHTS OF A BIRTHDAY

This grateful heart of mine rebels
At what my mind so feebly tells.
And all this day

Has quarreled with my groping pen
With words like this: "No, try again!"

There's more to say!
Surely you better can express
The depth of human gratefulness.

"You are his mind. I'm just his heart
And I must play a voiceless part.
Pay heed to me!

Why grope for words?" I overflow
With gratitude I ache to show.
Why must you be

So poor a medium to reveal
What always hearts so deeply feel?"

The worried mind kept answering back:

"The trouble is, old Heart, I lack
And all minds do.
The gift of words that can portray
The things which you would have me say

And that is true.
There is no mind that can impart
In words the promptings of the heart."

And still they quarrel! Still the mind
Insists 'tis difficult to find
The perfect phrase;

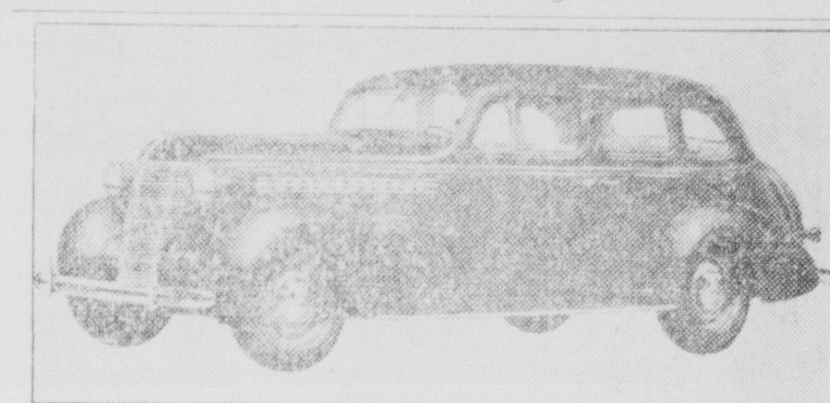

Nor ever shall this difference end.
So high the heart holds every friend
Who cheers my days.

The mind will always lack the art
To voice an overflowing heart.

LABOR LEADERS OPTIMISTIC

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP).—Organized labor's peace negotiators, beginning a week-end recess, showed more optimism today than at any time in recent weeks. Although none of the ten C. I. O. or three A. F. of L. delegates to the peace conference would say a reconciliation was in sight, all reported progress in reaching the heart of their problem—jurisdiction of conflicting unions.

G. O. P. TO NAME
POLICY GROUP TO PLAN CAMPAIGNS

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—The executive committee of the Republican National committee met today with the power to appoint a committee of 100 to formulate policy for the advance of the 1938 and 1940 campaigns.

Creation of the committee, to be known as the "committee on program," was the compromise reached by the national committee after it met Friday to amend former President Herbert Hoover's proposal for an unofficial convention of the party next year.

Names prominently mentioned for chairman included Senator Frederick Steiwer, of Chicago, who delivered the keynote address at the Cleveland convention in 1936, and John R. McCarl, of Nebraska, former comptroller general of the United States.

The program committee charged with the responsibility of considering "pertinent policies and issues of government" in what was termed "the crisis confronting the country" was provided for in a resolution introduced by National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton. The committee adopted it unanimously.

Hamilton said the resolution represented the consensus of those who until Friday debated both the advisability of a mid-term Republican convention, Representative Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, chairman of the congressional campaign committee, and one of the chief opponents of the convention proposal, did not oppose the resolution.

In New York, Hoover expressed the opinion the program committee could perform a great national service "if it is appointed from unaffiliated men and women who will stand up and be counted."

F.D.R., CONGRESS
LEADERS CONFER
ON NEW LAWS

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP).—President Roosevelt settled down today to putting his congressional program in shape.

He arranged to devote most of his time before the special session begins November 15 to conferences with House and Senate leaders and to preparing his opening address.

Among his conferees probably will be Senator Borah (R-Idaho), who will discuss anti-trust legislation—one of the five points on the President's program.

Congressional committees, already preparing for the session, have been working largely on two subjects likely to figure in much of the debate—crop control and tax revision.

Preparation of farm legislation has stirred up an argument between those who want to compel regulation of production and those who favor a voluntary program. President Roosevelt has not disclosed his views.

The Chief Executive did not let on whether he would support a plan to put a wide spread campaign of crop control in effect if the law was left open a few weeks for the crop to be harvested in a short time by heating the sand in an oven.

Cambridge, Mass. (AP).—Wonder what an astronomer thinks about? Here is the thought of one inspired by looking at the star Sirius, brightest in the heavens except the planets.

"Imagine, if you can," this astronomer writes anonymously in "The Telescope," a tube one foot in diameter and fifty million miles in length. Such a tube would extend approximately from the earth to Sirius.

Coming down such an imaginary tube to your eye the light of Sirius takes nine years to make the journey.

"In all this great tube," the astronomer goes on, "would be found only one-tenth of a gram of substance, just about the equivalent of the air in your ink bottle."

He means that this is all the matter outside the earth's atmosphere, which extends only a few hundred miles toward Sirius.

That ink bottle full of gas, spread all the way from here to Sirius, the astronomer thinks is a good, practical illustration of a vacuum.

IT'S ODD
But It's Science
(By The Associated Press)

New York—Of all odd things in the world number one is possibly the moving sands of the Kalahari desert in Africa.

A. D. Lewis has had a lot of fun as a boy with a new sled, while making a scientific investigation of the road. He slid down dunes on the sand of his pants.

This happened in an elongate patch of white sand near the southeast corner of the desert. The sand is confined to this area.

Mr. Lewis slid in hitches. With every slide the sand under his pants raised with a noise audible 800 yards. It sounded, he said, like distant thunder.

The noise appears, he concludes, whenever the sand is pushed "in a heaped-up manner." Sliding fingers in the sand and moving them up and down made the rear. Upward motion produced a higher pitch than downward.

Inspection showed that the sand grains were more rounded and of more uniform size than in the surrounding desert. A siskin taken back to Pretoria, would roar whenever the bag was tilted. But when a wide spread campaign has been devised, he is in and out of the desert, and the noise is gone.

A viewpoint held by many legislators was carried to the White House by Senator Byrnes (D-S. Cal.) after a talk with the President. Byrnes told reporters the corporate tax should be modified or repealed. He said it hurt small business and did not produce sufficient revenue.

Prospects for approving government organization at the special session—another of the President's five points—were enhanced by Byrnes' word that he would ask to substitute it for farm legislation as the first business in the Senate.

Senator Norris (Ind.-Rep.) has returned to aid in the fight for his regional planning bill. With him on the President's program.

If you pick up a phone in London and it smells like a hospital operating room, you'll know the phone cleaners have just called. They're very sanitary about telephones in London.

RUSSIA MARKS
20TH BIRTHDAY
OF REVOLUTION

Moscow, Nov. 6 (AP).—Soviet Russia's masses paused today in their labors toward increase industrial output to open the celebration of their nation's 20th birthday.

The Bolshevik revolution of 1917 will be commemorated with the customary fervor of oratory, a parade and a military review in red square Sunday, anniversary of the seizure of power by the late Nikolai Lenin and his followers.

But festivities really began today, as it was a day of rest. Red banners and portraits of Communist leaders, particularly that of Joseph Stalin, were spread over building fronts.

Few were the faces of old Bolsheviks who stood beside Lenin years ago. Many of those men had been killed in recent years by execution, imprisonment or disgrace—accused of dissension from Stalin's supreme leadership.

The growing might of Russia's army will be demonstrated in a parade of tanks, guns and picked troops from the 1,300,000 men under arms.

With the first secret, direct election of a supreme Soviet, or legislative council of two houses, only five weeks off, the celebration came in the midst of an election campaign, the main issue of which appeared to be loyalty to Stalin.

For weeks the workers, particularly the younger zealots, have been urged to greater labor productivity. To compensate for the lack of individual initiative which Communists associate with capitalism, "Socialist competition" has been stimulated.

Something like rival college teams, crews of workers in the same industry or factory have been competing to turn out more tonnage, more coal or whatever the product.

William Prynn, famous as the author of a book attacking actors and the theater, also wrote a volume entitled "The Unloveliness of Love-Locks, or, A Summary Disquisition on the wearing and nourishing of a lock, or love-lock, to be altogether unseemly, and unlawful unto Christians."

"Poems and Ballads," Swinburne's most famous book, appeared in two separate editions under different publishers' imprints in 1869.

F.D.R., CONGRESS LEADERS CONFER ON NEW LAWS

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP).—President Roosevelt settled down today to putting his congressional program in shape.

He arranged to devote most of his time before the special session begins November 15 to conferences with House and Senate leaders and to preparing his opening address.

Among his conferees probably will be Senator Borah (R-Idaho), who will discuss anti-trust legislation—one of the five points on the President's program.

Congressional committees, already preparing for the session, have been working largely on two subjects likely to figure in much of the debate—crop control and tax revision.

Preparation of farm legislation has stirred up an argument between those who want to compel regulation of production and those who favor a voluntary program. President Roosevelt has not disclosed his views.

The Chief Executive did not list tax revision on the special session program, but a widespread campaign has developed, both in and out of Congress, to modify quickly the corporate undistributed profits tax.

A viewpoint held by many legislators was carried to the White House by Senator Byrnes (D-3, C.) after a talk with the President. Byrnes told reporters the corporate tax should be modified or repealed. He said it hurt small business and did not produce sufficient revenue.

Prospects for approving government organization at the special session—another of the President's five points—were enhanced by Byrnes' word that he would ask to substitute it for farm legislation as the first business in the Senate.

Senator Norris (Ind.-Rep.) has returned to aid in the fight for his regional planning bill, fifth item on the President's program.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

New York—Of all odd things in the world number one is possibly the roaring sands of the Kalahari desert in Africa.

A. D. Lewis has just had a much fun as a boy with a new sled, while making a scientific investigation of the sand. He slid down dunes on the seat of his pants.

This happened in an elongate patch of white sand near the southeast corner of the desert. The roars are confined to this area.

Mr. Lewis slid in hitches. With every slide the sand under his pants raved with a noise audible 600 yards. It sounded, he said, like distant thunder.

The noise appears, he concluded, whenever the sand is pushed "in a heaped-up manner." Clicking fingers in the sand and moving them up and down made the roar. Upward motion produced a higher pitch than downward.

Inspection showed that the sand grains were more rounded and of more uniform size than in the surrounding desert. A sackful taken back to Pretoria, would roar whenever the bag was tilted. But if the bag was left open a few weeks, the roar disappeared. It could be restored in a short time by heading the sand in an oven.

Cambridge, Mass. (AP).—Wonder what an astronomer thinks about? Here is the thought of one inspired by looking at the star Sirius, brightest in the heavens except the planets.

"Imagine, if you can," this astronomer writes anonymously in The Telescope, "a tube one foot in diameter and fifty million miles in length. Such a tube would extend approximately from the earth to Sirius."

Coming down such an imaginary tube to your eye the light of Sirius takes nine years to make the journey.

"In all this great tube," the astronomer goes on, "would be found only one-tenth of a gram of substance, just about the equivalent of the air in your ink bottle."

He means that this is all the matter outside the earth's atmosphere, which extends only a few hundred miles toward Sirius.

That ink bottle full of gas, spread all the way from here to Sirius, the astronomer thinks is a good, practical illustration of a vacuum.

William Pryne, famous as the author of a book attacking actors and the theater, also wrote a volume entitled: "The Unloveliness of Love-Locks, or, A Summary Dissection of the hair, the beard and the navel of a lock, or love-lock, to be altogether unseemly, and unlawful unto Christians."

"Poems and Ballads," Swinburne's most famous book, appeared in two separate editions under different publishers' imprints in 1868.

RUSSIA MARKS 20TH BIRTHDAY OF REVOLUTION

Moscow, Nov. 6 (AP).—Soviet Russia's masses paused today in their labors toward increase industrial output to open the celebration of their nation's 20th birthday.

The Bolshevik revolution of 1917 will be commemorated with the customary fervor of oratory, a parade and a military review in red square Sunday, anniversary of the seizure of power by the late Nikolai Lenin and his followers.

But festivities really began today, for it was a day of rest. Red banners and portraits of Communist leaders, particularly that of Joseph Stalin, were spread over building fronts.

Few were the faces of old Bolsheviks who stood beside Lenin years ago. Many of those men had been thrust aside in recent years by execution, imprisonment or disgrace—accused of dissension from Stalin's supreme leadership.

The growing might of Russia's army will be demonstrated in a parade of tanks, guns and picked troops from the 1,350,000 men under arms.

With the first secret, direct election of a supreme Soviet, or legislative council of two houses, only five weeks off, the celebration came in the midst of an election campaign, the main issue of which appeared to be loyalty to Stalin.

For weeks the workers, particularly the younger zealots, have been urged to greater labor productivity. To compensate for the lack of individual initiative which Communists associate with capitalism, "Socialist competition" has been stimulated.

Something like rival college teams, crews of workers in the same industry or factory have been competing to turn out more ball-bearings, more coal or whatever the product.

Disaster Plays No Favorites

Records of 56 years of relief work by the American Red Cross show no community is immune to catastrophe—whether flood, fire, epidemic, highway accident, drowning or other hazard. The Red Cross always stands ready to help. So join for your own sake!

FLOODS ROSE TO DANGEROUS HEIGHTS in many cities as well as in rural areas in the Ohio-Mississippi valleys in 1937. Red Cross rescued and fed a million and a half people in 182 counties in 12 states

EXHIBITION BINS in a fair grounds auditorium made good beds for babies homeless during the floods. Red Cross nurses watched over the babies' health

DEATH TOLL from motor accidents continues to mount. Red Cross has Emergency First Aid Stations on nation's highways where trained first aid can be given injured

DEATHS from accidents in the home and on the farm outnumber deaths from motor injuries. Red Cross, through an educational campaign, seeks to combat these hazards to life

PREVENTION OF EPIDEMICS often is a Red Cross duty. Influenza, meningitis and pneumonia were curbed during the flood aftermath; 300 emergency hospitals were set up by Red Cross; 3,600 nurses were on duty

TORNADOES are disasters of most frequent occurrence—floods are second

CHILDREN HOUSED with their families in Red Cross tent colonies were given toys and recreation was provided by other children through Junior Red Cross

From beneath the hars hang long hair—apparently cut at home.

Weekdays and Sundays Amish men wear long black coats above black trousers with no buttons—only hook and eye fasteners.

Mennonites Not So Severe. The Amish have no churches. They meet each Sunday in the home of one of their number, taking turns preaching.

But the Mennonites have churches and are less severe than the Amish. On Sundays they wear clothing similar to the Amish, but the rest of the week they dress in the ordinary manner.

Some thousands of these unusual people are spread through Lancaster, Berks, Lehigh and Lebanon counties. Passerby can pick out their farms because the barn usually overshadows the home.

Ordinarily they settle their disputes without resorting to law. But out in East Lampeter township, which spreads for a dozen miles from the edge of Lancaster, several hundred "plain people" have attracted notional attention by opposing a new consolidated grade school, with its fancy lighting fixtures and modern drinking fountains.

Shen Worldliness. Some of them kept their children at home to "husk corn," as Amish Jonathan Zook says, rather than expose them to the "worldliness" of the big school. The "plain people" want to keep the ten one-room country schools that the new building replaces.

If the board insists their children ride in shiny buses to the new $250,000 school, erected with a $50,000 public works administration grant, which the embattled plain people say violates their aversion to going in debt, they threaten to turn to the United States Supreme Court.

If that court turned them down, Zook said, they might set up their own schools.

But there are signs of wavering. Aaron Riehl, standing in a tobacco field opposite the Zook farm, had opposed the new school but believed, now that it was finished, people should send their children to school.

Peaceful, plain-living and prosperous, the Amish, Mennonites, Dunkards and their cousin sects actively fight only one thing—change.

Not an Automobile. In their neat, freshly-painted homes in some of Pennsylvania's most fertile valleys, thousands of them live in the manner of their hardy ancestors who came from Germany nearly two centuries ago seeking religious freedom.

Old-line Amish, the most sober and frugal of the plain people, admit no telephones, no radios, no music boxes into their homes. They own no automobiles, but hitch their horses between the shafts of black, covered wagons to sell their products "in town" and buy the few odds and ends they can't fashion at home.

Black, flat-topped, broad-brimmed hats cover the heads of the men and boys. Black sunbonnets surmount the hair of the women, whose dresses also are black. But no laces, no frills.

RALPH B. BUTT, Prop. 13-17 York Street

From beneath the hats hang long hair—apparently cut at home. Weekdays and Sundays Amish men wear long black coats above black trousers with no buttons—only hook and eye fasteners.

Mennonites Not So Severe

The Amish have no churches. They meet each Sunday in the home of one of their number, taking turns preaching.

But the Mennonites have churches and are less severe than the Amish. On Sundays they wear clothing similar to the Amish, but the rest of the week they dress in the ordinary manner.

Some thousands of these unusual people are spread through Lancaster, Berks, Lehigh and Lebanon counties. Passersby can pick out their farms because the barn usually overshadows the home.

Ordinarily they settle their disputes without resorting to law.

But out in East Lampeter township, which spreads for a dozen miles from the edge of Lancaster, several hundred "plain people" have attracted notional attention by opposing a new consolidated grade school, with its fancy lighting fixtures and modern drinking fountains.

Shun Worldliness

Some of them kept their children at home to "husk corn," as Amish Jonathan Zook says, rather than expose them to the "worldliness" of the big school. The "plain people" want to keep the ten one-room country schools that the new building replaces.

If the board insists their children ride in shiny buses to the new $125,000 school, erected with a $56,000 public works administration grant which the embattled plain people say violates their aversion to going in debt, they threaten to turn to the United States Supreme Court.

If that court turned them down, Zook said, they might set up their own schools.

But there are signs of wavering. Aaron Riehl, standing in a tobacco field opposite the Zook farm, had opposed the new school but believed, now that it was finished, people should send their children there "so that neighbor will not be divided against neighbor."

And so with the younger people. The few who attended the new school on opening day liked the chained walls and electric gongs.

Maybe there's a change creeping into the "changeless" Dutch region.

The note A is used by most orchestras in tuning. Ordinarily it is sounded by the oboe.

Used Furniture Most of it same as new. Just received a lot of sectional bookcases in oak and mahogany. Furniture and pianos.

At the bottom of this copy there is a sign that is the real "headline" of this advertisement. It reads "Reliable Prescriptions" and its use is restricted to those selected stores where Prescriptions are of paramount consideration; where the most capable, conscientious, registered pharmacists fill each prescription precisely as the Doctor directs; where only fresh, potent drugs are used, and substitutions are never permitted.

Yes, we are proud that our store is privileged to display this symbol.

FAILS TO BREAK CAR SPEED MARK

Donnerville Salt Flats, Utah, Nov. 3 (AP)—Captain George E. T. Eyston, driving his "Thunderbolt," flashed through the measured mile at terrific speed over the salt course today but encountered mechanical trouble on the required return trip and failed to break the official world and speed record.

"Thunderbolt's" motor spluttered slightly several times as it approached the measured mile on the return run.

The retired British Army officer sped through a measured kilometer at 210.635 m.p.h. per hour on the first dash but the "electric eye" timing device, being used for the first time by the American Automobile association for high speed timing, recorded only 203.203 miles per hour for the measured mile.

Eyston's first run far surpassed the automobile record—301.1200, established by Sir Malcolm Campbell here in 1935—but on the return journey over the 13-m. straightaway the clutch "went bad" and the sleek racer loafed through the measured mile.

"Thunderbolt's" average for the measured mile was approximately the same as that of the measured mile.

AMUSEMENTS: HERE AND THERE

HE couldn't marry until he was thirty without losing three million dollars. She didn't want to marry because it would halt her singing career. But a few hours later, she claimed to be a bride—he announced himself as the happy husband and then comes the climax of the sparkling new comedy musical, "The Life of the Party," opening Monday at the Majestic theatre.

Gene Raymond and Harriet Hilliard comprise the romantic team of this tinsel riot, with Joe Penner, in Pangborn, Helen Broderick and in Pangborn, Helen Broderick and Victor Moore as a sextette of funsters who keep the hilarity of the offering at a high point.

Weaving half a dozen catchy songs and three dance preparations into the complications of its plot and offering picture patrons a steady flow of laughs and suspense as the romance spins from one obstacle to the next, "The Life of the Party" brings entertaining film novelties galore. William A. Seiter directed.

Ronald Reagan, Warner Brothers star, and former radio announcer, is the fastest-talking broadcaster. Once he hit 400 words per minute.

WHILE a hairdresser worked frantically to repair the damage, Gladys George sat for five hours with her head over a wash basin because her hair had turned green.

The night before Miss George had worked in rain scenes of "Madame X," the attraction next Wednesday at the Majestic theatre. She was soaked to the skin. She was wearing a dark green felt hat supposedly fast-dyed. But when the star awakened next morning it was to discover that the constant soaking had washed the dye into her blonde hair.

Shampoos, oil rubs and rinses by studio hairdressers finally returned her locks to their natural gold, but it was five hours before Miss George could return to the set.

John Beal and Warren William head the supporting cast in "Madame X," which was directed by Sam Wood.

Ian Keith, who plays the role of an American traitor in Cecil B. DeMille's "The Buccaneer," had a grandfather on each side in the battle of Gettysburg.

VALUED at $15,000, German medals of the World war were worn by 200 extras for a grand ballroom scene in Twentieth Century-Fox's espionage drama, "Lancer Spy," featuring Dolores Del Rio, George Sanders and Peter Lorre, opening next Thursday at the Majestic theatre.

Attired in the resplendent dress uniforms of the Imperial Army of the time, the company presents a thrilling and gorgeous background for the presentation by the Kaiser of the German Cross of Merit in an elaborate ceremony, authenticated by court experts. This medal alone is held by souvenir hunters to be worth $1,000.

The other medals were borrowed by the studio from a score of museums and private collections in this country, and each one is an authentic decoration of the Imperial troops.

School Director, With Three Years to Serve, Re-Elected

Cresson, Pa., Nov. 6 (AP).—A puzzling problem of mathematics and politics confronted the school board of suburban Sankertown today and members have called a meeting to figure it out.

Charles Lettner got two more votes than John S. Sherwood, the Republican candidate, in Tuesday's election of a board member.

But Lettner is a board member, has three years to serve and wasn't seeking re-election. Friends wrote in his name on the ballot.

Secretary Charles McGuire said the board probably would certify Sherwood, but the matter won't be settled until the meeting next week.

Braddock School Board Challenges Tenure Act

Pittsburgh, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Braddock township school board challenged the constitutionality of the new teachers' tenure act today in opposing an order of the Allegheny county court for the reinstatement of a teacher who was dismissed because she married.

The board contended a stipulation in the contract given Mrs. Elsie Hanna O'Shea, the teacher, permitted cancellation of the agreement if she wed. Mrs. O'Shea asserted the dismissal violated the tenure act.

observation by studying the eyes of the beautiful stars with whom he has worked and has watched on the screen.

Thorpe, who directed Myrna Loy and William Powell in "Double Wedding," the Majestic's feature next Friday and Saturday, placed Miss Loy first on his list, describing her eyes as most enigmatic.

In one-word descriptions he listed the eyes of other stars as follows: Norman Shearer, dramatic; Eleanor Powell, happy; Claudette Colbert, inspirational; Luise Rainer, versatile; Jeanette MacDonald, soulful; Marlene Dietrich, mysterious; Carole Lombard, wondering; Gladys George, mischievous.

The attraction at the Strand next Tuesday will be "Elephant Boy."

These pictures will be offered the theatregoer at the Majestic during the week of November 15.

Man About Manhattan

New York—I think it would be a good idea if New York were to arrange, for the benefit of visitors, an exhaustive itinerary of its waterfront.

It's a crime that thousands of guests pour into the city weekly and never see beyond a certain bald yardage of dock space and a few liners hitched to their berths.

The waterfront in New York admittedly is now a series of mechanized sheds showing nothing, on the surface, of the glamor and intrigue it knew in other days, but there still is meat for a fascinating tour of it if it were supplemented by an expert guide who knew the ABC's of its romantic interest.

In arranging such a tour I would emphasize the romantic interest of the tramps and freighters—especially the ones that ply between New York and those almost unknown ports of the tropics and the east.

For there is where the interest lies—from these points comes the stuff from which fiction and history are made.

I would have it so that one might go aboard those lumbering, barnacled craft whose holds carry hemp and shell and coconut and seaweed.

What can the great deluxe liners offer in interest compared to these derelicts of the sea whose wooden decks have witnessed desperate struggles between men under the soft light of tropic stars?

There are bright, vivid pages of the Arabian Nights to be unfurled if one knows where to go—strange babble of dialects and men whose skins range from lemon to ebony and alabaster, men who come from languid climes where peacocks roost in the banyan trees and the nightingales are commonplace as hens in a barnyard.

You'll see these men, swart and tawny, staring oddly at New York and seeing in it a civilization and a mode of life they can not understand. You'll see brown men from the temple cities of India, Lascars, Malays (who are probably pirates), Javanese (whose native land abounds with wild orchids), men whose forebears tended goat herds on the slopes of Palestine.

This is the bright lining to the grey, mist-hung curtain of the waterfront. Few see it and fewer still come to know it, but it is there if you know where to look.

52,000,000 MAY BE IN PENSION FUND IN 1960

Editor's Note: This is the second article on aspects of the Social Security funds now being scrutinized by an advisory council.

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP).—The advisory council on Social Security, examining operation of the law which provides for old age pensions and unemployment compensation, will learn from witnesses that it works something like this:

Uncle Sam has insisted that "John Wage-Earner" and his employers must lay aside money for a rainy day.

He makes certain they do it by taking part of the money out of "John's" pay envelope and part out of his employer's till. Uncle Sam holds the stakes.

There are 34,000,000 "John Wage-Earner" involved, but the council heard Friday that the number will grow to 52,000,000 by 1960. The stakes at the present rate of taxation, will amount to $47,000,000,000 by 1960.

It would be impossible, even for Uncle Sam, to put that much money away in vaults because there isn't that much money in the land. The total money supply last year was roughly only $17,400,000,000.

But it never was intended Uncle Sam should salt away the money. The legislation said he must put it in government bonds, the pension money in bonds of a special kind and the unemployment money in any government bonds earning a satisfactory rate of interest.

In other words, he has to borrow back the cash and currency and turn it loose in the channels of industry and commerce by paying his bills with it. In its place he puts the bonds, which differ from cash and currency primarily in that they draw interest for the reserves.

Uncle Sam's treasury does not go through every step of this process to accomplish the result. It notes the amount of incoming tax money, dumps it into the general purse, and puts away in the reserve funds the equivalent in bonds.

When interest on the bonds is due, Congress has to appropriate the money to pay it just as it would if someone else held the bonds. Then the treasury uses the interest money for paying old age pensions, etc.
